

SEMINAR PROGRAMME

TWENTY-FIRST CENTURY LITERACY IN EDUCATION:

WHAT IS IT? HOW CAN IT BE ACHIEVED?

A seminar organised by the

Centre for Cultural Policy Research (CCPR), University of Glasgow

The Melville Room, Main Building, University of Glasgow

10.00-1.00 on 21 March 2012

- 09.30: Arrivals and coffee
- 10.00: 'Welcome', Professor Philip Schlesinger, Director, Centre for Cultural Policy Research
- 10.05: 'Background to the project', Scott Donaldson, Portfolio Manager, Creative Scotland
- 10.10: 'Setting the scene for the media literacy debate', Professor Sonia Livingstone, Head of Department of Media and Communications, London School of Economics and Political Science
- 10.30: Discussion
- 10.50: 'How can digital media support learning? Reflections on a current project', Professor Sonia Livingstone
- 11.20: Discussion
- 11.40: 'Twenty-first century literacy: A report on Scottish perspectives', Dr Katherine Champion, Centre for Cultural Policy Research
- 12.00: Discussion
- 12.40: Concluding remarks, Philip Schlesinger and Scott Donaldson

A buffet lunch will be served