

Improving the nation's pet care

Scotland can now welcome the very latest state-of-the-art small animal hospital, with construction work nearly completed on the new building at the Garscube campus in Glasgow.

The £10m building, which will become something of a landmark in the west end of the city due to its distinctive sloping grass roof, is due to open its doors for business in August. An official opening will take place later in the year, along with preview tours for donors whose magnificent generosity made the building possible.

Students, residents and professional colleagues will benefit from the vast improvements in the training environment, while cutting-edge technology will help our dedicated staff deliver better care to our animal patients.

One of the unique services within the new hospital is the Dorset Foundation Centre for Comparative Oncology, which will provide a specialised cancer centre for animals. The linear accelerator – along with MRI and CT scanners – will dramatically speed up diagnoses and treatments and ensure a more rapid transfer of knowledge between the clinical and laboratory environments, to the benefit of patients.

New learning opportunities at SCENE

The Darwin Trust of Edinburgh will donate £100,000 to the University's Scottish Centre for Ecology & the Natural Environment (SCENE) campaign.

This will support the building of the teaching laboratory within SCENE which will be used by both undergraduate and research students as they study and work at our unique site near Loch Lomond.

Professor Sir Kenneth Murray is Chairman of the Trust: 'The beautiful scenes around "the bonnie banks o' Loch Lomond" are indeed legendary and no doubt contributed significantly to the establishment of SCENE at this very special location. After visiting this exciting new centre with Professor John Coggins last year, we are delighted that our trustees agreed to support the development of this important international initiative, and we wish it every success in the years ahead.'

Vice Principal for Life Science, Medicine & Veterinary Medicine, Professor Coggins, believes that this generous gift from the Darwin Trust will help the University to deliver excellent field biology teaching and will make a huge contribution to enthusing and training the next generation of biologists.

Over £1.6m has now been donated by alumni and friends to the campaign.

If you would like to support SCENE with a gift please fill in the donation form on page 7.

Message from the Director

Welcome to the latest edition of givingtoglasgow. I am very pleased to be able to tell you about several major gifts to the University which will help us to continue to provide the best facilities and to attract the best students and staff to Glasgow.

The generous gifts from the Darwin Trust to SCENE and from the Geoffrey Serth Charitable Trust to the Vet School's small animal hospital will make a huge difference to our ability to provide the best learning environment for our students and to attract the most talented academics and practitioners to Glasgow. In addition, a substantial and kind gift, the legacy of Miss Eleanor Emery, will provide scholarships enabling students from Botswana to study at postgraduate level at the University.

I would also like to extend my thanks to all of the University's alumni who have been so supportive in recent months across all of our projects. I hope you will enjoy reading about all the good work your gifts help to support.

Improving the nation's pet care

Another key service is the Petplan Pain & Rehabilitation Centre, which will offer a radical and exciting change in the care of pets throughout the UK, offering a more holistic, integrated approach, through rehabilitation, hydrotherapy and pain clinics, as well as an increase in complementary therapies such as acupuncture.

'We are delighted the hospital is nearing completion and we are very excited at the prospect of moving into what will, without doubt, be one of the world's leading small animal hospitals,' comments Professor Stuart Reid, Dean of the Faculty of Veterinary Medicine. 'This building will help us to attract and train the vets of the future and allow our expert staff the opportunity to further develop the best approach to the lifetime well-being of small animals.'

'I sincerely thank every single donor who has supported us since the campaign was launched officially in 2004. I hope to meet as many as possible at the preview tours and opening.'

If you would like to support the new small animal hospital with a gift, please fill in the donation form on page 7.

Generous donation for new operating theatre

The new small animal hospital building will provide increased operating theatre capacity, from two theatres in the existing building to four in the new facility. We are delighted to have received a gift of £100,000 from the Geoffrey Serth Charitable Trust in support of one of these theatres.

The operating theatres are a key facility within the hospital, servicing cases to the highest standards and enabling the development of cutting-edge techniques in an environment of training and learning.

'We are very pleased to be able to recognise the Trust's gift in this way,' comments Professor Reid. 'The trustees' generosity will not only provide improvements to the surgical intervention of our patients but will, as in human medicine, lead to new developments in minimally-invasive surgery.'

'It will also support future generations of students in their training, as fourth- and final-year students are integrated into the surgical teams as junior members with specific roles, so providing them with on-the-job experience. Each theatre will also be wired with cameras, so all operating procedures can be recorded for training and auditing purposes.'

Making a difference

The University will receive £400,000 from the estate of Eleanor Emery, MA (1941). Miss Emery, who died in June 2007 aged 88, made provision in her will to support students from Botswana, a cause which was very important to her.

This most generous sum will provide the Glasgow Centre for International Development (GCID) with the means to support high-achieving postgraduate students from the University of Botswana to undertake PhD studies at Glasgow.

Miss Emery joined the Civil Service in 1941 and enjoyed an interesting and varied career working in the UK, Canada and South Africa. However it was her appointment as the High Commissioner of Botswana which made the most lasting impression on her life. Her achievements are marked as she was the first British female to head a foreign mission and is remembered for her excellent work in establishing effective working relations with the Botswana Government.

Her time in post earned her much admiration and affection among expatriates and Botswanans alike and the University is honoured to be able to continue her memory by supporting students from the country that meant so much to her. The first students to benefit from The Eleanor Emery Scholarship Scheme will start in September 2009.

Professor John Briggs is Director of GCID: 'We are delighted to receive this legacy from one of our graduates so early on in our fundraising campaign for the GCID scholarship scheme. Miss Emery's generosity will ensure the University remains at the forefront of interdisciplinary research in international development and strengthen links with the University of Botswana.'

Leaving a bequest is the ultimate gift. You may not be able to contribute to the University in your lifetime but leaving a legacy can ensure that you make a real and lasting difference to an area of personal interest.

The Scholarships Fund

Rector launches Talent Scholarship scheme

The Rt Hon Charles Kennedy MP has launched the University's new scholarship drive. The Talent Scholarships are open to any undergraduate UK-based student studying for a first degree at the University of Glasgow and are designed to help ease the financial burden on students and enable the University to continue to attract the brightest and best students.

At a ceremony held in the Senate Room of the University, the first 76 beneficiaries received their award from Dr Kennedy, the current Rector of the University. He said: 'It is fantastic that these scholarships are funded by gifts from former students of the University, which shows how the students of yesterday are helping the students of today and tomorrow.'

One such donor is Charlotte Pache (née Hall), LLB (1991), DipLP (1992) who has established a Talent Scholarship for a student studying law. A native of Edinburgh, Charlotte started her career in legal publishing and subsequently joined a litigation support business. In January 2003, she moved to Hong Kong to take up the role of Managing Director of the Asia division of Merrill Legal Solutions (part of the Merrill Corporation).

On why she established the scholarship, Charlotte said: 'I loved my time at Glasgow and, coming from a less affluent background, I didn't have financial support to get through my degree. I want to enable others facing similar challenges to have the opportunity to complete their studies without the same pressures.'

'My degree has given me great opportunities which might not be open to someone in similar circumstances. I'd be delighted if in some small way I can make a difference that means a student can get as much out of the degree as I did. The Talent Scholarship scheme provided the framework for all that I wished to achieve in making this gift.'

Project in focus - the Hunterian

The Hunterian Museum & Art Gallery's programme of exhibitions and events attracts visitors from around the world. Its successes have been reflected in a prestigious 4-star rating from VisitScotland and being heralded as 'one of the City's greatest cultural assets' by the Glasgow City Marketing Bureau.

Support from donors was crucial in gaining these accolades. A grant from the Chancellor's Fund enabled the University to provide museum visitors with clearer signage, an introduction to the collections and a touchscreen visitor information point. A further £20,000 was recently granted to enhance the promotion of the Hunterian's exhibition programme. This support will be vital in further raising the profile of the Hunterian as one of the University's most prized assets.

Susan Ferguson, Head of Marketing & Development at the Hunterian, explains: 'The University has unique collections and the Hunterian works hard to ensure that as many people as possible can enjoy them, achieving a great deal with limited resources. One of our most successful exhibitions to date was the 2003 Whistler exhibition. Part of its success undoubtedly lay in having an iconic painting, 'Whistler's Mother', on loan but, thanks to external funding, this could be complemented by an improved marketing budget.'

Highlights of the Art Gallery's forthcoming programme include prints by Edvard Munch, the first UK retrospective of the visual art of John Cage, and a celebration of Whistler's 'Blue and Silver: Old Battersea Bridge.'

Medical Fund update

Alumni from the 1968 Beta Club raised £5,000 for medical education at the University.

Year group giving

The Medical Fund benefits from the University's Reunion Giving Programme which enables alumni to celebrate their reunion by supporting one of the University's projects. This programme was established to help the many class groups who had expressed a desire to raise funds as well as celebrate the anniversary of their group.

Alumni can make a personal donation to the fund and this will contribute to their year group's total. Year groups such as the 1966 Zeta Club have been supporting the University's medical projects in this way for many years. Year groups who celebrated reunions last year and chose to support the University in this way include the 1952, 1967, 1968 and 1973 Beta Year Clubs and 1988 Gamma Year Club.

Members of the 1968 Beta Club have already raised over £5,000 for medical education at the University following their reunion last October in the Zoology lecture theatre where they met 40 years ago. Members of the 1952 Beta Year Group have been raising funds to support the Beatson Pebble Appeal and they have raised over £10,000.

Our thanks go to all the groups who fundraise in this way and we hope this will inspire others to do the same. If you would like to know more about how you can fundraise through your reunion event please contact Laura Crouchman on +44 (0)141 330 3878 or l.crouchman@admin.gla.ac.uk.

Sheenah Russell bequest

The Faculty of Medicine recently received a £5,000 bequest from Dr Sheenah Russell, a good friend of the University. Dr Russell, a consultant paediatrician, had previously supported the University with a gift to the Wolfson Medical School Building in 1999. She said when she gave that gift, 'I still nourish a great affection for the University and deep gratitude for the medical training I received'.

In her will she asked that her bequest be used for a project in the University's medical school and the funds were used to enable all final-year medical students to undertake a day of training at the Scottish National High Fidelity Simulator at Stirling's Royal Infirmary. Each student had the chance to be involved in two dramas as a junior doctor delivering acute care. They also witnessed four acute-care scenarios, run in real time, and were part of the team that critiques and provides feedback to their peers. The feedback from the medical school has been very positive with the students developing an awareness of the practical knowledge, skills and decisions required in successfully managing high-risk medical and surgical scenarios.

In the past few years the Medical Fund has received £1.5m in bequests which has been allocated to various projects in areas including mental health, heart disease, kidney disease and cancer research. Professor Jim McKillop, Deputy Dean of the Faculty of Medicine says, 'We are very grateful for all the bequests we receive. Unrestricted bequests such as this one, however, are especially valuable as they can be allocated to the current medical priorities and allow us to give the students opportunities that they might not normally have been given.'

Outstanding RAE results boost appeal

Under the government-run Research Assessment Exercise (RAE), all research in the UK was benchmarked and rated. It is seen as an internationally-recognised barometer of quality.

The University's cancer submission was rated the fourth best of any university in the UK, a result that cements Glasgow's leading position as a centre of excellence in cancer research.

The submission benefited from the inclusion of the Beatson Institute for Cancer Research, led by Professor Karen Vousden, which represents one of the largest collections of cancer biologists in the UK.

The Paul O'Gorman Leukaemia Research Centre merited special praise from the panel, saying it was 'a flagship model of integrated basic, translational and clinical research'.

The outstanding RAE results help to demonstrate that Glasgow is succeeding in its vision to play a key role in the treatment and prevention of cancer, in Scotland and worldwide.

The goal is to be in a position to treat patients in a more tailored way, with customised drugs, targeted treatments and diagnostic options that are less toxic and more effective, so that each cancer and each patient is treated individually.

The Beatson Pebble Appeal – the fundraising drive to build the Beatson Translational Research Centre – will help achieve this vision.

Professor Barry Gusterson, Scientific Adviser for the Beatson Pebble Appeal, says: 'Such outstanding RAE results strengthen the case to build Scotland's first cancer research facility dedicated to translational research in Glasgow. These results demonstrate that there is potential for great advances in cancer research in Glasgow.'

The Beatson Pebble Appeal has raised £4.5m so far. A recent highlight was the news that the Wolfson Foundation had agreed to support the project with a donation of £1.75m. However, with a £10m target there is still a long way to go.

The Beatson Pebble Appeal

Backing the Beatson Pebble Appeal: (clockwise from top) Professor of Cancer Biology Karen Vousden with Richard Wilson; Connal Cochrane from Rangers Charity Foundation with broadcaster Sally Magnusson; and Shereen Nanjiani.

Celebrities and local media back the appeal

We are very fortunate to have the support of a number of Scottish celebrities including Richard Wilson, Barry Ferguson, Stephen McManus, Sally Magnusson and Shereen Nanjiani. Additionally, the Glasgow Evening Times featured a series of articles highlighting our appeal in April.

Richard Wilson recently commented, 'Scotland has such a high incidence of cancer and we all have family and friends that have been touched by this disease. I believe that supporting the Beatson Pebble Appeal is our chance to support what has the potential to be a real breakthrough in the fight against cancer'.

Charity Zip Slide:

Saturday 20 June 2009

Would you like to slide across the River Clyde on a 150ft high wire? If the answer is yes then why not take part in the very first University of Glasgow Charity Zip Slide and raise funds for the Beatson Pebble Appeal? This appeal will raise funds for the new Beatson Translational Research Centre which is to be based at the University's Garscube campus and will convert basic cancer research into real improvements in treatments for patients. For further information please visit:

www.beatsonpebbleappeal.org.

No experience is necessary for the zip slide as full instruction will be given on the day by ALPS Outdoor. Entry fee is £40 and anyone can take part who is over 16 years of age.

For an entry pack please contact Susanne Hill at s.hill@admin.gla.ac.uk or +44 (0)141 330 2132. All spaces will be allocated on a first come, first served basis, so you will need to register quickly.

Alumni support continues to grow

Our alumni have increased their support towards the University during the difficult economic climate.

We would like to thank donors for making the Autumn 2008 telephone campaign the most successful in recent years. Over £99,000 was pledged over a six-week period to a variety of campaigns including the Chancellor's Fund, Scholarships Fund and Beatson Pebble Appeal.

Our telephone campaigns continue to make progress and for the first time last year we called our alumni in Greece. We received an excellent reception from the Greeks with lengthy conversations about what it is currently like in Glasgow being held with our student callers. We are excited to announce that in 2009 we will be calling Canada and the US as well as China for the first time. We hope that this will further our fundraising efforts and also bring closer the University's global network of friends.

The future of our alumni fundraising looks bright with a diverse range of donors pledging at a time when the need for resources, scholarships and cutting-edge research becomes more urgent.

'Working on the telephone campaign not only allowed me to help raise money for my University but it also gave me the opportunity to speak to a wide range of people.'

Kerry Gallagher, former student caller

Giving to Glasgow: how you can help make a difference

Gift Aid declaration

As an exempt charity, the University of Glasgow/ University of Glasgow Trust (UOGT) can reclaim basic rate tax on all gifts, provided that you have paid an amount of UK Income Tax or Capital Gains Tax equal to the Tax we reclaim. The University of Glasgow/UOGT will reclaim 28p of tax on every £1 you gave up to 5 April 2008. After this date, the University of Glasgow/UOGT will reclaim 25p of tax on every £1 you give. The Government will pay to the University of Glasgow/ UOGT an additional 3p on every £1 you give between 6 April 2008 and 5 April 2011. This transitional relief does not affect your personal tax position. If you pay Tax at the higher rate, then you can claim further Tax Relief on your self-assessment Tax Return.

I would like the University of Glasgow/ UOGT to treat all donations that I have made since 6 April 2002, and all donations I make from the date of this declaration, until I notify you otherwise, as Gift Aid donations.

Want to help? Here's how!

Bequests

Bequests are favoured by many alumni and friends who want to make a difference after their death. A gift of this kind also helps to reduce your inheritance tax liability.

Stocks and shares

Since 6 April 2000, individuals have been eligible for tax relief on gifts of certain shares, securities and other investments. This is in addition to capital gains tax relief on gifts of assets to charity. Tax relief for donors is based on the value of the shares on the day they are transferred to the University. If you would like to support your chosen project by gifting shares and securities and would like more information, simply call the Development & Alumni Office on +44 (0)141 330 4951.

Giving from the USA

US taxpayers can give tax-deductible gifts to the American Alumni of Glasgow University, an independent charitable corporation organised in the United States that has been recognised by the Internal Revenue Service as a section 501(c)(3) charitable organisation. All donations to it are deductible as charitable contributions to the full extent permitted by law. Its Board of Directors will determine the use of all gifts.

Contributions should be made payable to: American Alumni of Glasgow University, 198 West River Street, Milford, CT 06460-3468.

Giving from Canada

Canadian residents will be provided with a receipt for their tax records from the University. Cheques should be made payable to 'University of Glasgow' (and not the University Trust) to be able to claim tax relief.

Data Protection Act 1998

Under the codes of the 1998 Data Protection Act, the University of Glasgow will use the information provided by you for University education, social and charitable purposes only.

Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002

The Development & Alumni Office acts in accordance with the terms of the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002. Information on donations received by the University of Glasgow is provided in 'Giving to Glasgow' and other project-specific newsletters. Information is included only on donors who have given us their express permission to do so.
