Template for Minutes of Board of Examiners’ Meetings

In December 2001 Senate agreed to the introduction of standard headings for minutes of Examination Boards.

Under the terms of the 1998 Data Protection Act universities are obliged to disclose to students, on request, extracts of any Examination Board minutes which refer to the student in question by any identifier from which the student could be identified e.g. registration number. In such disclosures, references to third parties by name, registration number or other identifiers must be removed from the minutes before they are made available to a data subject.

Further information on responding to data requests is available from the Data Protection/Freedom of Information Office: www.gla.ac.uk/services/dpfoioffice/

In producing Examination Board minutes, all Schools are asked to use the standard headings detailed below. Furthermore, Boards of Examiners are advised to adhere to the following:

- avoid including personal information;
- refer to individual students by registration number only to preserve anonymity during discussion and in the minutes;
- ensure that the minutes attribute all decisions to the Board, rather than refer to individual examiners.
