Supporting the University

Making a difference

Raising awareness

Continuing traditions of philanthropy

Since its foundation, the University has been the fortunate and grateful beneficiary of countless legacies from its generous alumni, friends and supporters. We report on three recent bequests which will ensure that the University continues its tradition of excellence in medical research.

Bequests with a personal touch

The University has been fortunate to receive several very generous bequests in recent months. These donations will make a lasting impact on the work of the University.

Some of these bequests have been left with a specific purpose in mind, such as the Graeme Paterson Bequest – left to the Medical Fund – which will help young clinicians to conduct research into cancer.

This bequest is the legacy of Professor Peter Paterson, who was appointed to the St Mungo Chair of Surgery at the University in 1924. He had worked as an assistant under Sir William Macewen, a former student of Lord Lister and a distinguished surgeon in his own right.

Professor Paterson's primary research interest was the control of cancer. He left a legacy to his son, Graeme, who then left in excess of £300,000 to the University in his will.

After consultation, the Graeme Paterson Bequest will be used in particular to fund cancer research by young clinicians at the University, where Professor Paterson qualified in the 1890s and continued his work until retirement.

Other similarly generous bequests that have been gifted recently include the bequest of William I MacKechnie, and that of Jean Robertson Stirling.

Both of these bequests will be directed towards medical research, and the Medical Fund

The three bequests will be directed towards medical research in the University.

Executive Committee will agree on an appropriate use.

Look out for the next issue of Giving to Glasgow to see whether these bequests are helping to build new facilities, purchase state-of-the-art equipment or fund medical research projects.

Professor Paterson (left) studied medicine at Glasgow in the 1890s and worked at the University throughout his career.

Introducing the University's Scholarships Fund

We hope you enjoyed your time at the University. Would you like to ensure that others enjoy their student days too and that Glasgow is able to continue to attract the very best students? You can do this by giving a gift to the University's Scholarships Fund.

PhD student Ching Chua was the holder of the Francis & Marta Johnson Scholarship in 2006, spending ten weeks last summer at the State University of New York, Stony Brook.

The fund provides a variety of ways in which your scholarship gift can be put to work to help undergraduate, postgraduate, home or international students across all faculties. Alumni and friends have been generous over many years in supporting scholarships, and we are now aiming to increase the support we are able to offer students.

Your gift to the Scholarships Fund will enrich the University experience of future students. As our examples show, gifts of all sizes will help, and attract naming opportunities: from a major gift which could fund a scholarship in perpetuity with the name of your choosing, to a named gift within the Gifted Scholarship Scheme.

- Named Endowed Scholarship – to create a Postgraduate Research Scholarship which would bear your chosen name in perpetuity, you would need to provide a capital sum for endowment, sufficient to generate a monthly income of at least £1,000 – please contact us for more details.

- Named Annual Scholarship – you may wish to give a Postgraduate Glasgow Excellence Award to support a student at a cost of £12,000 per year or an Undergraduate Glasgow Talent Award at £1,250 a year (£104.17 per month). This would join such scholarships as the Ron Emanuel, Beaton and Donald Dewar Scholarships and ensure that the University is able to provide financial support for those who require it.

- Gifted Scholarship Scheme – a regular monthly gift could be directed towards the Gifted Scholarship Fund as shown in the table at the foot of the page.

Our new scholarships brochure elaborates on the full range of undergraduate and postgraduate scholarships. Please contact the Development & Alumni Office, 2 The Square, University of Glasgow, Glasgow G12 8QQ, tel +44 (0)141 330 4951 or email: campaign@gl.ac.uk

All gifts will be acknowledged on the University's Online Benefactors' Wall – see page 4 for details.

Bruiser's name lives on

The Cat Waiting Room in the new Small Animal Hospital has been gifted by Douglas and Pippa Hutchison, and will be named in memory of their cat Bruiser.

Douglas, a veterinary graduate from the class of 1980, believes passionately in the development of the new hospital, saying: "This is our opportunity to ensure that people's pets in the future receive the very best of veterinary treatment available".

Pippa, an animal behaviour consultant at the Veterinary School, will also be assisting with the design of the new Cat Waiting Room to help "provide an optimum environment for cats and their owners".

Admish Blue Bruiser in the garden.

The Gifted Scheme (see table below) allows you to support the Small Animal Hospital campaign and name your gift in perpetuity.

Vets of 1966 raise funds

When Glasgow vets decide to do something, they really roll their sleeves up and plunge in. Understanding the importance of the new Small Animal Hospital to the University, to the students training there, and to its future patients, our graduates have been leading the fundraising effort.

No one exemplifies this more than Melvyn Pond from the class of 1966 whose 40th graduation reunion was held in the summer of 2006. To celebrate the event, he and classmate Peter Holmes, now Pro Vice-Principal at the University, started a fund off with their own pledges, and turned to the rest of their class to contribute to a gift as part of their reunion. So far, they have raised nearly £35K. Donations continue to arrive, and we look forward to recognising their contribution by naming part of the hospital in their honour.

SCENE: skills for the future and memories of the past

For many undergraduate students in subject areas such as zoology, aquatic bioscience, plant science, environmental chemistry and geography, a highlight of their degree is time spent on a residential field trip, learning practical skills and putting theory learnt to the test in a real environment.

The University's field station on the banks of Loch Lomond is a unique place for this. Surrounded by areas of international conservation importance, the location of the field station allows us to teach the next generation of environmental graduates field skills in the biological and environmental sciences in a way that is probably unsurpassed in the UK.

Redevelopment of the teaching facilities at SCENE will secure the University as the UK leader in providing its graduates in the environmental sciences with the skills increasingly needed in the workplace.

The improved teaching and accommodation facilities will enable us to bring state-of-the-art techniques to fieldwork and increase the number of students taught over the next three years from 600 per year to over 1,600 per year. Students who study here are recruited into a very wide range of professions where their knowledge helps contribute to the future protection of the environment.

If you would like to support the SCENE campaign, please complete the Giving Form on pages 7-8.

Fieldwork is a highlight for many students

Field trip fun

SCENE supporter and Zoology graduate Cathy Black remembers the fun of the learning process at the field station:

"We were given the chance to observe and study live animals in their natural habitats. It was such fun! We also worked together, in pairs or small teams, which was a pleasant change and a great way to get to know others.

"Even back then, the buildings were old and rather 'tired' but the setting was so beautiful, it was a real pleasure to be there. And we went in June when the weather was great.

"With the new facilities, the University can now offer a perfect environment for students and so I decided to make a major gift to the campaign which will provide an invertebrate identification room."

SCENE building wins Carbon Trust award

The first phase of the new field station facility, providing research accommodation, has received the Carbon Trust Low Carbon Building Award. The award, which was presented at the Scottish Energy & Environmental Conference in February, recognises Scottish buildings which showcase leading examples of energy efficiency and sustainability.

On a site within Loch Lomond and the Trossachs National Park, the plans for the research building were sensitively developed by architects Page/Park. One of the main contributing factors to the University's success is the ground source heat pump installed in the SCENE building. The pump draws energy from the ground, providing a low carbon source of heat.

Albert Young, Energy Conservation Officer at the University, said: "We had the opportunity to input sustainable design features into the fabric of the building and the success of the ground source heat pump in helping to reduce energy consumption by 19% compared to a similar building, saving 140 tonnes of carbon a year, demonstrates what can be achieved."

This is the second award for SCENE. It has also been recognised with a BREEAM rating of 'Excellent', the first for a university in Scotland. BREEAM is the Building Research Executive's Environmental Assessment Method and is regarded as the measure of best practice in environmental design and management and recognises the environmentally friendly methods of construction, low-energy use and sustainability of new buildings.

Chemistry gifts

Chemistry alumni have been digging deep to support their department through the Chancellor's Fund. Gifts from the year groups of 1954, 1955, 1956 and 1964 have resulted in an inspiring total of £4,200 to date.

During the summer of 2006 the funds were put to good use, setting up vacation studentships to help deserving students enhance their degree and gain experience of working on research projects.

Professor David Jackson, Head of the Department of Chemistry, is delighted: "This gift has allowed us to create opportunities for students over and above those already offered. Third year students applied for the studentships so we could ensure they would go to the most promising people. It was a great success. Three students were supported for two-month projects over the summer.

"All three students have benefited considerably from working in the research labs and the work done by these students will be published in top-flight research journals. As a department we would like to say a big thank you to those chemistry alumni who contributed."

Lynsey Pugh was one of three students to benefit from the generosity of chemistry alumni through a vacation studentship.

Do you want to help your favourite department? Why not organise a class reunion and join with your classmates in a group gift? Contact Emily Wallace, Alumni Manager, on +44 (0)141 330 2668 or email: e.wallace@admin.gla.ac.uk

1956	£75

Telephone campaign news

Plans are underway for the University's 2007 telephone campaigns. In the last four years our excellent team of student callers has spoken to a staggering 28,310 alumni who have shared memories of their time at Glasgow and also their experiences since graduation. Readers may recall one student's experiences of the telephone campaign in the last edition of 'Giving to Glasgow'.

Over the past eight campaigns 3,422 alumni have responded by making a gift or pledge – raising a total of just over £791,000. This means that 25% of all donors in the last four years have given in response to the telephone call from a University of Glasgow student.

As you will see from these figures, a percentage of alumni pledging small regular donations to the University can make a remarkable difference to its fundraising efforts. Without these valued donors making regular gifts of as little as £10 a month we would not be able to achieve the University's strategic objectives to provide excellent facilities and to support the best students and researchers from around the world.

Online donor wall scheme launched

Donors to the University's building projects will know that our Gifted Schemes allow donors to name a 'brick' in the building they have chosen to support. We are currently developing a new method of recognising our supporters' generosity.

This year, the University will launch its Online Benefactors' Wall, a searchable web-based equivalent of the donor walls erected for our capital projects.

One of the major advantages to having a dynamic, online donor wall is that it can be constantly updated to reflect ongoing support to the University. There will also be links to archive information on the University's historic benefactors – from King James VI to our present day supporters.

This new scheme will initially be piloted with all gifts to the Chancellor's Fund, as this fund has never had a physical presence on campus in the same way as the other campaigns. This will be rolled out to all donors to the University in due course and we will be in touch with our supporters soon.

Above: The Donor Wall in the Wolfson Medical School Building. A new online donor wall will be launched by the University this year.

Leukaemia centre work underway

It is now six months since building work started on the new Paul O’Gorman Leukaemia Research Centre at Gartnavel Hospital.

The new centre will combine diagnostic laboratories with a world class leukaemia research laboratory and will attract scientists and doctors from all over the world who will focus on driving basic science through to new treatments for adults and children with leukaemia and other blood cancers.

Fundraising continues for the project with the focus now on staffing, equipment and infrastructure. The completion date for the building is November 2007 and it is hoped that the centre will be fully operational by February 2008.

The establishment of this centre has only been possible through the outstanding fundraising efforts of our supporters including a huge number of patients, their families and friends, colleagues and Glasgow graduates.

Message from the Director

I would like to offer my sincere thanks to those who have given to our various projects. Your support enables this great institution to keep forging ahead, consolidating its position as one of the best universities in the world. To this end, we are investing in the best people and facilities. Some examples of how we are doing this can be found in the pages of this issue of ‘Giving to Glasgow’.

On page 2 we have highlighted the new Scholarships Fund. Over the years, many of you have generously funded scholarships. Looking to the future, one of our main aims is to offer more scholarships to deserving students. We hope that our new Gifted Scholarships Scheme will inspire our alumni and friends to join the others who have made a significant difference to students’ lives.

Forthcoming events — dates for your diary

Doggy Dawdle

24 June 2007

Join hundreds of canine paws and wagging tails and take part in our second annual fun sponsored walk – a 5k or 10k walk within the beautiful grounds of Garscube Estate, Bearsden. Funds raised will be directed to the new Small Animal Hospital. Dogs are welcome but not compulsory! Contact Angela Hair on +44 (0)141 330 3593 or email: a.hair@admin.gla.ac.uk

Glasgow Bikeathon

19 August 2007

A fun, family cycle run for people of all abilities: follow a pre-determined stewarded route, starting and finishing at Kelvingrove Park, Glasgow. Participants must be aged seven years or over. Keep healthy and raise money in support of the new Paul O’Gorman Leukaemia Research Centre. Contact Angela Hair (details as above).

Letter from America

“Glaswegians have more fun than anyone else I know,” says Joanna Storrar, Vice-President for North American Development. “They also care deeply about the University of Glasgow, and will do anything they can to help their alma mater.”

Since August 2005, Joanna has been based in the University’s New York office, getting to know some of the 5,000 alumni in North America, putting them back in touch with each other, and encouraging them to support the University.

Working with Friends of Glasgow University, and alumni groups in New York, Washington, Chicago, Boston and Los Angeles, a real momentum is building and people are starting to notice.

“Our alumni are pleased to see how active Glasgow is here, flying its flag, increasing its profile, and raising funds,” says Joanna.

Charity Abseil

7 October 2007

An exhilarating descent from the University tower – 177ft high with wonderful views over Glasgow! Participants must be over 16 years of age. No experience is necessary as full tuition is given by the Glasgow Climbing Centre on the day. All funds raised will go towards the University’s Medical Fund. Contact Susanne Hill on +44 (0)141 330 2132 or email: s.hill@admin.gla.ac.uk

Artevent

28/29 November 2007

The University and CHAS (Children’s Hospice Association Scotland) will hold their fourth biennial artevent in November in the Wolfson Medical School Building. Funds raised will be split between Robin House, the children’s hospice in Balloch run by CHAS, and the University’s Medical Fund, supporting cancer research in Glasgow. Contact Angela Hair (details as above).

Want to help? Here's how!

Regular giving

If you'd like to give a regular gift, simply complete the attached form and return it to us. If you are a UK taxpayer and would like the value of your gift to increase by around a third, just complete the Gift Aid Declaration and return it with your Banker's Order Form. Don't forget to indicate which project you would like to support.

Bequests

Perhaps you would prefer to support the University with a bequest? This method of giving is favoured by many alumni and friends who want to make a difference after their death. A gift of this kind also helps to reduce your inheritance tax liability.

Stocks and shares

Since 6 April 2000, individuals have been eligible for tax relief on gifts of certain shares, securities and other investments. This is in addition to capital gains tax relief on gifts of assets to charity. Tax relief for donors is based on the value of the shares on the day they are transferred to the University.

If you would like to support your chosen project by gifting shares and securities and would like more information, simply call the Development & Alumni Office on +44 (0)141-330 4951.

Payroll giving

Payroll giving is a unique way for employees to give to the University. By having your donation come straight from your gross pay before tax, you can effectively increase the value of your contributions. The result is greater support for the University at less cost to you. If you are interested in this method of giving, please contact the Development & Alumni Office on +44 (0)141-330 4951.

Giving from the USA

US taxpayers can give tax-deductible gifts to the Friends of Glasgow University, Inc, an independent charitable corporation organised in the United States that has been recognised by the Internal Revenue Service as a section 501(c)(3) charitable organisation. All donations to it are deductible as charitable contributions to the full extent permitted by law. Its Board of Directors will determine the use of all gifts.

Contributions should be made payable to Friends of Glasgow University, Inc., 244 Madison Ave #403, New York 10016.

Giving from Canada

Canadian residents will be provided with a receipt for their tax records from the University. Cheques should be made payable to The University of Glasgow (and not the University Trust) to be able to claim tax relief.
