Rationale

The University of Queensland uses a different scale which precludes it from the national table above. Currently, Glasgow uses a unique conversion table for each of its Australian partners, notably with varying cut off points for failing grades (see QUT 7-point scale). Generally, Glasgow is more lenient particularly in the lower part of the spectrum than other UK institutions and so this national table attempts to standardise the grade classifications.

Radboud lists any course component achieving less than 5.5 as “Fail”. This means that the course overall is listed as failed, regardless of other component results, and does not appear on the transcript. This should be regarded as equivalent to E1 grade unless it has been possible to obtain more granular information from colleagues at Radboud to allow a different grade to be calculated. Furthermore, Kozminski University has two distinct fail grades and so both of these grade classifications have been included.

Rationale

Korea University is unlike the Seoul National University and Yonsei University because it uses a 4.5 scale rather than a 4.3 scale. The Glasgow grades have been produced based on the current national conversion table for USA/Korea and the percentage worth of the Korea University grades.

For more detail, see the attached rationale document.

Rationale

Swedish universities use unique grading scales and so there are a range of practices. Therefore, each partner requires a specific table. In addition, each University, e.g. Lund, may operate a variety of scales across their faculties. Co-ordinators and Students are advised to ascertain which scale is in use prior to grade conversion.

Rationale

This table is based on the conversion table for the University of Geneva. Note that this table is more specific and also more lenient than the current table for the University of Fribourg. This puts Glasgow's conversions in line with the University of Bristol.

This table was expanded in August 2021 to reflect the full range of grades being reported by returning students.

Rationale

* Note that SUNY Buffalo has no C+, C-, D+ grades. A grade C at that institution translates to a C2 in Glasgow.

 An A+ at Alabama is nominally 4.33, but students in fact cannot achieve a higher GPA than 4.0.

System 2: Texas

System 3 (based on grade profile data): Alabama, Alaska, Boston College, California, Connecticut, Denver, Illinois, Maryland, Miami (Florida), Miami (Ohio), Minnesota, North Carolina (Chapel Hill), Oklahoma, Radford (Virginia), SUNY Buffalo (except Law), Vermont, Virginia, Washington (American University).
