

MVLS Student Voice Careers & Employability

Most students felt that their degree had given them the skills needed for a job, but were unsure how to articulate these skills.

TIP: USE THE STAR FRAMEWORK!

Networking is considered to be the best way to gain employability, followed by building soft skills and closing the skills gap.

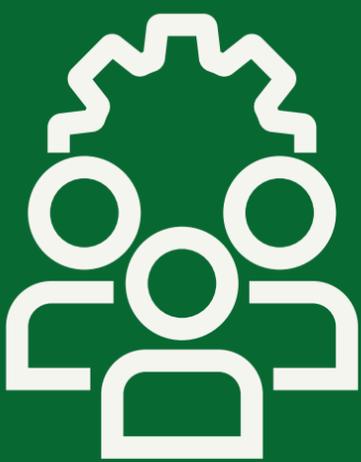

- LinkedIn is a great way to network!
- Volunteering can help build soft skills.
- Have a look at QS rankings for skills gap. Employers believe that resilience is the most lacking skill in graduates.

According to students, internships and interactive sessions with industry are the most useful opportunities. However, there is a need for more MVLS targeted career events.
