

SOCIO1009

Sociology 1A: Self and Society

- Explore the key concepts, theories and research methods sociologists use to understand the nature of contemporary societies, the relationship between the individual and society, and processes of social reproduction and change.
- Learn to 'think sociologically' about your experiences and your own place in society.

SCAN ME

SOCIO1010

Sociology 1B: Critical Research in Contemporary Societies

- Analyse a wide range of examples, as an introduction to several different thematic areas or sub-fields of sociology.
- Develop your ability to 'think sociologically' about yourself, your experiences and your own place in society.

SCAN ME

SOCIO2020

Sociology 2A

- Develop a deeper knowledge of key sociological, criminological and anthropological theories, concepts, ideas and traditions.
- Explore the contemporary relevance of the work of a diverse range of influential scholars, including Karl Marx, Charlotte Perkins Gilman, W.E.B DuBois, Frederic Thrasher, Marcel Mauss, Margaret Mead and Zora Neale Hurston.
- Study topics such as gendered care; racism; norms, traditions and rituals; the role of prisons in society; the urban experience; gift exchange; and the transition to adulthood.

SCAN ME

SOCIO2021

Sociology 2B

- Examine inequalities and social identities in contemporary societies, processes underpinning social change and to recognize how those processes affect the formation of both inequalities and identities in contemporary society.
- Develop a deeper knowledge of contemporary societies by introducing a range of substantive examples, as well as theoretical discussion about the interplay of different forms of inequality, and the socially constructed nature of difference.

SCAN ME