

SOCIO1021

Justice and the Restitution of Cultural Heritage

- Explore how issues of justice, power and identity shape debates around the right to culture and who owns the past.
- Investigate how looting, trafficking and exploitation of cultural objects, natural resources and ancestral remains produce ongoing harm.
- Examine the legal frameworks, ethical dilemmas and political context of restitution claims and reparative justice.

SCAN ME

SOCI01022

Playing the world: understanding real-life challenges through interactive games

- Investigate complex real-life challenges, and how they are represented in games.
- Reflect on your experiences of the games you play in class and analyse those real-life challenges as a result of their experiences.
- Explore how real-life can be represented through complex interactive systems, and how to interpret media (here game) representations of real life.

SCAN ME

 SPS1001

Measuring Your Social World

- Build your research skills and data literacy through topics such as: what are data, preliminary steps to analysing and visualising data, how information can be skewed by reports and the media, and the concept of statistical analysis and hypothesis testing.
- Integrate programming in R to prepare students to undertake quantitative analyses over the course of their study and beyond.

SCAN ME

SPS1010

Does Scotland need Human Rights? Mobilising for Change with Civil Society

- Investigate the human rights-based approach, drawing from philosophical, legal and socio-political paradigms.
- Explore working with civil society and co-producing evidence, the course builds towards frameworks for generating solutions and influencing policy.

SCAN ME

SPS1011

Smash the Anthropocene! Understanding, Communicating, and Stopping Climate Change

- Build your confidence in understanding and communicating about climate change.
- Meet with practitioners and learn how to critically examine their narratives about climate action.
- Develop the collaborative and creative skills necessary for effective climate action.

SCAN ME

SPS1012

Not just politics as usual: The John Smith Centre guide to making change

- Explore a taster menu of ways to engage in political action.
- Hear from journalists, campaigners and politicians, amongst others, about who has power and how change happens.
- Design a campaign strategy and materials, then reflect on the campaign that you created.
- Develop skills including project management and planning, negotiation, and communication.

SCAN ME