What type of course is best for you?

The Centre offers a wide range of courses and events for adults which are open and accessible to everyone. Most have no entry qualifications and many have no examinations. Students can choose courses from one or more of the following:

Short courses, half day and day events

These have no credits

Award in Continuing Education

Each ACE course contributes 8 ACE credits towards this award

Language courses

Each Stage contributes 10 CertHE credits

Certificate of Higher Education

These courses range from 10 – 40 CertHE credits

Advice

If you wish to discuss your plans for studying on our courses or your options for the future, you are welcome to contact the Centre for Open Studies Guidance Officer, Irene Vezza.

Please contact Irene on: +44 (0)141 330 1823

Email: Irene.Vezza@glasgow.ac.uk

You can discuss which courses to take, how to develop your learning, including part-time and full-time courses, and finance for study. Appointments can be made to suit or advice can be offered by telephone or email.

Short courses, half day and day events (without credit)

The short courses and events without credit are similar to ACE courses, but there is no assessment option.

ACE courses

These courses have no entry qualifications, no formal examinations, and usually no requirement of previous subject knowledge. They generally require at least 16 hours of study. There is no emphasis on assessment but students can choose to do an assessment if they wish to work towards the Award in Continuing Education.

The Award in Continuing Education

Students are eligible for this award after they have successfully completed the assessment on 5 different ACE courses, thereby achieving 40 ACE credits. The award can be translated into 20 CertHE credits towards a Certificate or Diploma upon request.

For further information go to: www.gla.ac.uk/services/centreforopenstudies/informationforstudents

Language courses

Starting in October, courses normally run for two hours per week, for 20 weeks, with daytime, evening and Saturday morning options. Some courses also take place in East Renfrewshire, East Dunbartonshire and Helensburgh. All language courses are worth 10 credits and you achieve these when, through normal classroom activities (not through an examination), you demonstrate a minimum level of competence expected for your particular course. If you first enter the language programme at Stages 2, 3 or 4, and successfully complete the course, you will be eligible to receive credit for the lower stage courses as well; e.g. if you join and successfully complete a Stage 2 German course you would, on request, be credited with 20 credits.

How to enrol

By telephone

Telephone enrolments will be taken from 10.00 to 16.30 Mondays to Fridays (and from 10.00-19.00 from Mon-Thurs 11 August – 16 October).

Please call +44 (0)141 330 1860/1853/2772 and have ready your credit or debit card details and/or ILA number (if applicable) and the course code of the courses you wish to take.

Students using a Part-time Fee Grant will be unable to enrol by telephone.

In person

Please complete an enrolment form and bring it to the Information Office with the appropriate fee (credit/debit card payment, cheque, cash and or ILA number). Please note the University cannot accept more than £50 cash payments.

The office is open for personal enrolments from 10.00 to 16.30 Monday to Friday (and from 10.00-19.00 Mon-Thurs 15 September -16 October). It would be advisable to check that the Information Office is open before making a special journey.

Languages Open Evening

There will be a Languages Open Evening in the St Andrew's Building on Tuesday 2 September from 18.00-19.30. A panel of tutors will be on hand to answer queries and help you choose the correct stage for your language. Since we cannot test students beforehand, please do everything you can to match your level to the correct stage of language class. You can obtain Language Stage Description Sheets from the Open Studies Information Office, the web at: www.gla.ac.uk/courses/openstudies/languageprogramme or by phoning +44 (0)141 330 1835 and asking for the relevant sheets to be sent out.

If you are still not sure which course to join, you can also talk to a tutor on our Languages Helpline between 13.00-14.00 on Thursdays from 7 August, the helpline number is: +44 (0)141 330 1817/1854.

Further information on our language courses, including description sheets, is also available on our website at: www.gla.ac.uk/courses/openstudies/languageprogramme.

Certificate in Higher Education courses

Level 1 CertHE courses need no prior knowledge, and you are free to pick whichever ones most interest you. In order to make your choice, you might find it helpful to know that in general the greater the number of credits, the more study will be required in order to complete the course successfully. In addition to attending lectures there will be reading and revision etc. Level 2 courses usually require you to have successfully completed a relevant level 1 course.

Postal enrolment

Please complete an enrolment form and post it to the Information Office with the appropriate fee (credit/debit card payment, cheque and/or ILA number – no cash by post, please) to

FREEPOST RRTHTTRT-YXLK,
Centre for Open Studies, St Andrew's Building,
11 Eldon St, Glasgow, G3 6NH

Please note that the University does not accept Maestro cards.

If you pay for your course using ILA funds and do not attend you must formally withdraw from the course otherwise you will be liable for the course fee.

Certificates and Diplomas in Higher Education

Students achieving 120 CertHE credits are eligible for a general Certificate in Higher Education. However, you can also work towards one of several different Designated and Specific Certificates. A Designated Certificate has a general focus on a subject area, while a Specific Certificate follows a specified programme of study. We also offer Diplomas in Higher Education which require 240 Credits from Level 1 and level 2.

Designated Certificates

- Ancient studies
- Creative and cultural studies
- Environmental studies
- European civilisation
- Historical studies
- Literary studies
- Scottish studies
- Social science studies
- Visual arts

Each designated certificate requires 60 credits from a range of relevant courses and 60 credits from any CertHE course or Credit Transfer.

Specific Certificates & Diplomas

- Certificate in Creative Writing
- Diploma in Creative Writing
- Certificate in Egyptology (Language)
- Certificate in Egyptology (Material Culture)
- Diploma in Egyptology New
- Certificate in Psychology New
- Certificate in Counselling Skills New
- Certificate in Field Archaeology

The Specific Certificates and Diplomas are similar to the Designated Certificates but with more specific requirements as to which courses you must take and in which order.

To find out more about these requirements visit www.gla.ac.uk/courses/openstudies/certhe/

Further information is also available from the CertHE brochure which can be viewed on our website.

Egyptology and the Ancient Near East

Egyptology project

Day: Arranged to suit students and tutor
Starts: Week beginning 22 September 2014

This course allows students to follow up their previous studies in Egyptology and to take their interest in this specific subject area further. In doing so, students will build up their confidence for working independently using discussions with their peers and tutor rather than the formal support structure of a class. In carrying out their research, students will identify and respond to the appropriate scholarly writings, form their own opinions and develop skills in extended essay writing.

Prerequisites: 100 credits in Egyptology courses, or equivalent experience

Coptic: language and lives, level 2

Day: Thursday
Time: 19.00 – 21.00
Starts: 25 September 2014 (22 meetings)

For those with an elementary background in the Coptic language, this course will develop existing skills for reading Sahidic Coptic texts of various kinds, including letters, gospels, sayings of the desert fathers, and martyrdom stories.

CertHE Credits: 40 at Level 2

Prerequisites: Coptic, level 1

Tutor: William Manley BA PhD

Cost: £460 Code: 18243

Ancient Egyptian temples

Day: Tuesday
Time: 19.00 – 21.00
Starts: 13 January 2015 (11 meetings)

We will explore the architecture of Ancient Egyptian tombs and temples, and the ideas and practices associated with them. Students will be expected to learn about different types of Egyptian temple, as well as specific temples such as the pyramid complexes of Giza and the temples of Thebes. Particular emphasis will be put on how to use archaeological sites as a source for the study of Ancient Egypt, and on how to interpret archaeological sites in their social and historical context.

This course can be studied online.

Literature of the Ancient Near East

Day: Tuesday
Time: 14.00 – 16.00
Starts: 12 May 2015 (11 meetings)

This course introduces students to the wider Near Eastern world through three sets of case study texts comparing Mesopotamian literature and its themes with more familiar Egyptian material. Students will use these primary sources as evidence for reconstructing life in ancient Egypt and Mesopotamia, and as a basis for exploring cultural differences. Texts include The Epic of Gilgamesh, The Laws of Hammurabi, The Dispute of a Man with his Soul and The Tale of Sinuhe.
This course can be studied online.

ONLINE COURSE

The Evil one of Akhetaten: the life and legacy of Egypt's heretic king

Day: Online
Starts: 13 October 2014 (4 sessions)

Heretic, monotheist, pacifist, visionary, madman... Scholarly debate rages over what to call Egypt's infamous reformer-king Akhenaten who turned Egypt upside down within his short reign. This short online course explores in detail the politics, religion, art and literature of the so-called Amarna revolution and goes in search of the man behind the myth.

DAY EVENT

House of Eagles, Nest of Vipers: Alexandria and the Ptolemaic Dynasty

Day: Saturday
Time: 10.00-16.00
Starts: 14 February 2015 (1 meeting)

Ancient Alexandria, established by Alexander the Great as the focus for his new Empire, became a cultural melting pot. Its turbulent political history dominates the Mediterranean world for 300 years, culminating in the reign of Cleopatra VII and the clash with Rome. Through texts, archaeology and art, we will encounter the luxurious royal court, the vibrant philosophical environment and the interplay of a multi-cultural mix unequalled in the ancient world.

DAY EVENT

The art of Ancient Mesopotamia – A day school in association with BISI

Day: Saturday
Time: 10.00-16.00
Starts: 28 March 2015 (1 meeting)

The world's first civilizations and empires emerged in Mesopotamia (ancient Iraq) in the period 3500-500 BC. Through the extraordinary art recovered by archaeologists – ranging from delicate carvings in ivory to huge panels of carved stone – we will investigate what these images can tell us about the politics and religious beliefs of the Sumerians, Babylonians and Assyrians. This is the 6th Mesopotamia day school run in association with The British Institute for the Study of Iraq. Each is a stand-alone course.

Archaeology and the Material World

The Certificate in Field Archaeology

This is a two-year programme for which the student will receive 120 credits at Level 1.

The programme consists of three 20-credit courses each year. Students will be required to enrol and pay for all three courses at the start of each year. The aim of the programme is to introduce students to the fundamentals of archaeological field survey and British, especially Scottish, archaeology. The courses combine lectures with essay and project writing, visits to museums and archaeological sites, hands-on laboratory classes, computer-based exercises and practical field experience, by means of which students will be introduced to subjects ranging from aerial photography to archaeozoology, with a particular focus on field survey techniques. Tutors for the programme are drawn predominantly from amongst practising archaeologists, with further contributions from members of staff of the University of Glasgow and other qualified professionals. Specific techniques and period studies throughout the programme are taught by recognised specialists in the relevant fields.

In year 1 the student will progress from an introduction to the archaeology of Prehistoric and Roman Scotland in the first semester, to an introduction to the theory and practice of field archaeology in the second semester, concluding with a week-long field school in the summer focusing on elementary field survey methods. The student will then progress onto year 2, which comprises an introduction to Medieval and Post-Medieval archaeology in Scotland in semester 1, further archaeological theory and practice in semester 2, and a second, week-long field school in the summer, covering advanced field survey techniques.

If you are interested in enrolling on the programme, please get in touch with Angela McDonald: Email: angela.mcdonald@glasgow.ac.uk Tel: 0141 330 4581

We anticipate that enrolment for the Certificate in Field Archaeology will start at the end of August (any students who have registered interest will be notified) and that the programme will commence at the end of September.

The archaeology of huntergatherers: the Palaeolithic and Mesolithic of Northern Britain

Day: Tuesday
Time: 14.00-16.00
Starts: 7 October 2014 (8 meetings)

Using archaeological, environmental and ethnographical evidence and object-handling sessions, this course explores aspects of huntergatherer lifeways across the Paleolithic (13600-9600 BCE) and Mesolithic (9600-3600 BCE) periods. We'll study people's patterns of life, the customs marking their deaths, and their changing landscape of melting ice-sheets, tsunamis and other ecological events. Our focus is Northern Britain, but we'll draw upon similar evidence from north-west Europe.

Shedding light on the Dark Ages: Scotland AD 400-1100

Day: Thursday
Time: 14.00-16.00
Starts: 29 January 2015 (8 meetings)

In the early medieval period, the lands that today make up Scotland were inhabited by Picts, Britons, Scots, Anglo-Saxons and Vikings. Who were these people, and how did these groups interact? This course provides an overview of the religion, art and material culture of this little-known period in history, illustrating through archaeological discoveries that this 'dark age' was anything but.

Church archaeology in Scotland and its neighbours

Day: Thursday
Time: 19.00-21.00
Starts: 29 January 2015 (8 meetings)

Using architectural, historical and archaeological evidence, this course explores the development and role of the medieval Christian church in Scotland and its neighbours. Students will examine documentary sources, buildings and archaeological sites to better understand the function of the church in religious belief, society and governance during the medieval period, and the architectural legacy of the medieval church.

DAY EVENT

The archaeology of religion

Day: Saturday
Time: 10.00-16.00
Starts: 21 February 2015 (1 meeting)

Rich artwork, striking symbolism and stunning buildings clearly played a major role in the great religions of the past. But how can archaeologists understand the religious beliefs of people who lived a thousand years ago? Join us as we examine buildings, art and objects to reconstruct the religious experiences and practices of three major religions – Judaism, Christianity and Islam.

The Greek and Roman World

Classical Greek civilisation 1A

Day: Monday
Time: 19.00 – 21.00
Starts: 22 September 2014 (22 meetings)

A comprehensive introduction to the Classical Greek world, divided into two courses which can be studied over two successive years. It provides a solid foundation for the study of the subject at a higher level and also offers the opportunity for useful background study for those whose principal area of study will lie elsewhere, since history, literature, art and philosophy are all discussed. In all these areas, the contribution of Greece to the development of later western culture has been immense. This course is a self-contained unit on the history, literature and art of fifth century BC Athens.

Introduction to Latin

Day: Tuesday
Time: 19.00 – 21.00
Starts: 23 September 2014 (22 meetings)

This course is designed for total beginners in Latin and will introduce the main features of the Latin language over the session. An ability to read and understand Latin is the principal aim, but an understanding of the grammar and structure will be an important adjunct. The course book is GDA Sharpley, Teach Yourself Beginner's Latin (3rd edition 2003) and additional material will be provided where appropriate.

The Greek and Roman World

~~Ancient afterlives: the Underworld in art and literature~~

~~Day: Wednesday
Time: 19.00-21.00
Starts: 8 October 2014 (4 meetings)~~

~~From the bleak underworld of Homer, where all but a lucky few are reduced to fluttering shadows, to the Christian belief that the virtuous go to heaven and the wicked to hell, the afterlife has captured the imagination of authors and artists. Examining art and literature, we will explore the development of the underworld from Ancient Greece to Christian Rome.~~

HALF-DAY EVENT

Hairstyles of the rich and famous – a beginner's guide to ancient coinage

Day: Saturday
Time: 10.00-12.00
Starts: 18 October 2014 (1 meeting)

Ancient coins preserve some remarkable portraits. The images of the gods and deities of the earliest Greek coins are replaced by human portrayals following the death of Alexander the Great. Hellenistic rulers portrayed themselves on their coins, and Roman emperors followed this example. Our overview of ancient coinage reveals the elaborate hair, wigs and embellishments all depicted in a tiny portrait.

DAY EVENT

~~Blood and humors? An exploration of Greek medicine~~

~~Day: Saturday
Time: 10.00-16.00
Starts: 25 October 2014 (1 meeting)~~

~~Greek medicine provides the basis for all western medicine, even if it has been completely redefined. This day event will explore the origins and beliefs that shaped Greek medical knowledge, from the four humors, to blood letting and the attempts to gain balance that informed changing practice. Some interesting beliefs and interpretations will be contrasted with what happened on the ground.~~

DAY EVENT

The art of two worlds: Ancient Rome and Ancient Egypt

Day: Saturday
Time: 10.00-16.00
Starts: 8 November 2014 (1 meeting)

When Egypt became part of the Roman Empire, two art-worlds collided. But how similar were the artistic traditions of Rome and Egypt? And how much did Egypt influence its captor? Combining two specialist perspectives, and using contrasting case studies from the lived and funerary realms, we will explore the cultures of Rome and Egypt through the mirror of their art.

Later Antiquity and the Medieval World

Scottish brochs and the Roman Empire

Day: Tuesday
Time: 19.00-21.00
Starts: 17 February 2015 (4 meetings)

Scottish brochs are small but massive drystone towers often containing undisturbed evidence of both local events, and those happening further away. A few brochs, particularly in the south, witnessed the three Roman invasions of Scotland and their archaeology provides a unique insight into the nature of the impact of the Roman Imperial Army on local Iron Age tribesmen. Focusing particularly on Dun Ardtreck on Skye and Leckie in Stirlingshire we will explore the impact Roman influence had on native culture.

Day: Saturday
Time: 10.00-16.00
Starts: 9 May 2015 (1 meeting)

From Aeneas escaping the burning city of Troy to Romulus murdering his twin brother, Remus, Roman foundation myths are full of excitement, intrigue and divine intervention. By looking at a variety of texts and images depicting conflicting stories of Rome's rise to greatness, we will explore the importance of foundation myths in forging a Roman sense of identity and self.

Taking the Cross: the Crusades 1095-1254

Day: Tuesday
Time: 19.00 – 21.00
Starts: 23 September 2014 (22 meetings)

What social, cultural and religious influences led men and women to take the cross? The history of the Crusades is often obscured by popular myths and modern prejudices and misconceptions. Drawing on written, artistic and archaeological evidence and the latest research you will reappraise and challenge such misconceptions. We will investigate the origins of crusading, the evolution of the crusading movement, who the crusaders were, the responses of Islamic world, and the extension of crusading beyond the Holy Land. This course offers you the opportunity to gain a deeper understanding of this fascinating period in the history of East and West.

~~Healing saints in Medieval Scotland and Ireland~~

~~Day: Saturday
Time: 10.00-16.00
Starts: 11 October 2014 (1 meeting)~~

~~The recent publication of TV historian Robert Bartlett's new book 'Why Can the Dead Do Such Great Things?' shows that interest in medieval saints is alive and well and selling books. This day course will look at how Irish and Scottish saints, both alive and dead, demonstrated their power by their ability to heal. Episodes from a number of saints' lives will be discussed to show how and why they healed and the reasons behind the performance and recording of these miracles.~~

DAY EVENT

Early medieval invasions and migrations in Scotland

Day: Saturday

Time: 10.00-16.00

Starts: 15 November 2014 (1 meeting)

The centuries following the fall of the Roman empire saw mass migrations and bloody invasions across western Europe. In Scotland these ranged from the movement of Scots from the west, Anglo-Saxons from the south, and Vikings from the north, as well as Christian missionaries from Ireland and the continent. But how much do we actually know about these movements? Using archaeology, recent research has questioned these ideas. This day course introduces you to the evidence firsthand so you can judge for yourself.

Medieval worlds – discovering the Middle Ages

Day: Tuesday

Time: 10.00-12.00

Starts: 09/05/2015 (8 meetings)

Modern popular culture often presents the Middle Ages as superstitious, primitive and overwhelmingly violent and irrational. Using a wealth of written, artistic and archaeological sources we explore a complex world of piety and power, loyalty and treachery, atrocity and sanctity. Studying the lives of the powerful and the powerless – those who fought, prayed and laboured – we challenge our perception of Medieval Europe.

Francis of Assisi – man and myth

Day: Thursday

Time: 13.00-15.00

Starts: 22 January 2015 (8 meetings)

Francis of Assisi has crossed boundaries in many ways – one of the only saints to be universally recognised by Protestants and Catholics and even acknowledged in some Muslim circles – but what was he really like? Is it the man or the image that endures? With a contentious and controversial 'spin-doctoring' of his way of life after his death, leading to offshoots of heresy and a disregard of his own wishes, this course will look at how a holy man lived and how his legacy was used by the Church.

Art of the Italian Renaissance

Day: Wednesday
Time: 10.00-12.00
Starts: 24 September 2014 (22 meetings)

This course provides a broad overview of the main strands of Italian art between c. 1400 and 1527. Focusing on the cities of Florence, Rome and Venice, the series of lectures will account for the development of art in these centres within the wider context of Italian politics, society and culture. Among the many themes highlighted are the role of patronage, the function of works of art and buildings, the techniques and materials used, and Humanism and the revival of the classical tradition. The course as a whole offers an introduction to the discipline of Art History and provides a solid foundation for further study in the field.

The art of the 20th century

Day: Wednesday
Time: 13.00-15.00
Starts: 24 September 2014 (22 meetings)

The art of the twentieth century can be both exhilarating and daunting. Often people feel that they would like to know more about it but are afraid that they will not be able to understand it or that they will be confused by all the different 'isms' of twentieth century movements. This course is all about demystifying modern and contemporary art. It provides a general overview of some of the major movements, artists and ideas of twentieth century art and also introduces students to some of the important debates and controversies which surround the variety of art from the last century.

Dutch 17th century painting

Day: Thursday
Time: 10.00-12.00
Starts: 15 January 2015 (10 meetings)

The 17th century is regarded as the golden age of Dutch painting. The Dutch succeeded in establishing a Republic, independent of Hapsburg rule. Its economy boomed and the art market flourished. New categories of painting developed, celebrating Dutch pride and achievement and reflecting the ideas and concerns of contemporary society. The artists who produced them were as varied in styles as the subjects they painted. This course will assess the remarkable and influential contribution to European painting made by masters such as Rembrandt, Hals, Vermeer, Ruisdael and others, in the historical context of the new Dutch Republic.

THE HUNTERIAN

Celebrating Mackintosh

Charles Rennie Mackintosh is celebrated internationally as one of the most creative and individual artists and designers of the early 20th century and The Hunterian is home to the largest single holding of his work. It also features The Mackintosh House, the reassembled interiors from his Glasgow home.

This year, The Hunterian is celebrating all things Mackintosh to mark the end of a landmark research project. Mackintosh Architecture, a major exhibition, is the centrepiece of this celebration and is supported by a number of related displays and events. Mackintosh Architecture is the first exhibition devoted to Mackintosh's architectural work and features over 80 architectural drawings from The Hunterian and collections across the UK. Many have never been exhibited before and are on display alongside specially commissioned film, models and archival material.

A second smaller exhibition, Mackintosh Travel Sketches presents a selection of drawings and sketchbooks by Mackintosh from The Hunterian's unrivalled collection. It includes early studies in the north of Scotland, a series of beautiful studies of the castle at Holy Island, Northumberland, and complex drawings from Cintra in Portugal. Mackintosh Architecture is at the Hunterian Art Gallery until 4 January 2015. Mackintosh Travel Sketches runs until 1 March 2015.

Early enrolment helps

If a course struggles to recruit students, it may have to be cancelled a week or two in advance of the first class. This allows those who have enrolled to find an alternative activity and also frees up badly-needed teaching space. If students can enrol at least two weeks before the starting date it helps us to keep courses running and plan the best use of teaching rooms.

Art Psychotherapy

Introduction to art psychotherapy

Day: Monday

Time: 13.00-15.30

Starts: 22 September 2014 (24 meetings)

Art therapy (now known as art psychotherapy) is a psychological therapy that uses art materials for self-expression and reflection in the presence of a trained art psychotherapist. It is a psychological treatment that helps someone to express and explore thoughts and feelings that they might otherwise struggle to put into words. It is another way of understanding and processing emotional problems. Our course will aim to offer you direct experience of using creativity and art-making for greater awareness of the role and function of an art psychotherapist; to provide a firm foundation for the possible progression onto a postgraduate MSc in art psychotherapy. It does not offer professional qualifications to practise art psychotherapy nor does it provide personal therapy. A key part of our course is to give you a 'hands on' experience by making art work in a group setting, engaging in a range of creative workshops and learning through case presentations and group discussions. Please note there is a cost of £25 for course materials included in the fee.

Pre-requisites: Students will be selected following a pre-course interview process.

Interested in 'Big Data'?

We have a series of Continuing Professional Development courses and events starting in September 2014. To request our new CPD brochure which will be available soon please telephone +44 (0)141 330 1835 or see our website www.glasgow.ac.uk/centreforopenstudies/cpdcourses for more details.

Early enrolment helps

If a course struggles to recruit students, it may have to be cancelled a week or two in advance of the first class. This allows those who have enrolled to find an alternative activity and also frees up badly-needed teaching space. If students can enrol at least two weeks before the starting date it helps us to keep courses running and plan the best use of teaching rooms.

WEDNESDAY

Working with trauma

Day: Wednesdays from 21 January 2015
Time: 18.30-21.00 (6 meetings)

Trauma results when an event or incident overwhelms a person's ability to cope or where it outweighs an individual's personal resources: perhaps resulting in the experience of overwhelming emotion, fear of death and complete helplessness. Insight will be provided of working within the three stage model of recovery from trauma, an empowerment model used in many support organizations.

~~Day: Monday~~

~~Time: 19.30-21.30~~

~~Starts: 6 October 2014 (8 meetings)~~

~~This course will consider and examine US Congressional elections, so often missed or ignored behind the hoopla of elections of Presidents. We will begin with an overview of the American political system as a whole, consider the issue of parties in American politics, analyse results patterns from previous mid-term elections and then consider the November 2014 elections. Only once in fifty years (1998, when the Democrats gained five House seats) did a sitting President not see his party lose seats in a second midterm. In 2014 Democrats need 17 House seats and have to defend 21 Senate seats, including several open ones. These elections are just as crucial as ones to the White House — which we shall see.~~

Native American worlds: from early contact to the Trail of Tears

Day: Tuesday
Time: 19.00-21.00
Starts: 20 January 2015 (8 meetings)

This course introduces the world of Native American peoples from first contact on the eastern seaboard until forced removal and the Trail of Tears in the nineteenth century. With European colonisation came major challenges to the Indian way of life as both sides sought to accommodate new ideas of race, social class and sexual behaviour, but where some Indians sought compromise with colonisers, others resisted fiercely. Decades of warfare and enduring hostilities left their mark on indigenous landscapes. Domestic worlds, community, dress, familial responsibilities, hunting and social customs all underwent significant upheaval, and the new roles of men, women and children are explored through this course, as they lived, loved and fought with Euro-American settlers.

DAY EVENT The United States as a global power: challenges and opportunities since the end of the Cold War

Day: Saturday
Time: 10.00-16.00
Starts: 14 February 2015 (1 meeting)

The United States remains the dominant power in the world. Since the end of the Cold War it has possessed unprecedented military, political and economic resources and influence. However, the promise of a 'new world order' remains unfulfilled and the Obama administration has yet to find a focus to balance US power and responsibility in the twenty first century. This course will explore the foundations of US global power in the Cold War period and examine the search for a new global order in the 1990s under American influence. The impact of 9/11 will be assessed and the contribution of the Bush administration to the reformulation of foreign policy will be interrogated. The challenges to US power in the twenty first century will be assessed and questions in respect of the stability of the existing system will be posed.

~~Day: Wednesday
Time: 19.00-21.00
Starts: 1 October 2014 (Please note there will be no meeting held on 5 November 2014) (8 meetings)~~

~~The Atomic age began in 1945 and introduced a new sensibility. For decades the threat of annihilation hung over humanity, affecting politics, society and culture in dramatic ways. The Cold War represents the political face of a conflict that at times came close to mutual destruction. Other unique features of this era include the welfare state, full employment and mass consumer culture. Culture wrestled with these new dilemmas. Drawing on recent publications, historical documents, film, music and material culture we will investigate what makes this period exceptional and explore the consequences for the contemporary world.~~

Scotland and the Caribbean

Day: Saturday

Time: 14.00-16.00

Starts: 18 October 2014 (1 meeting)

Scotland has a long and continuing connection with the Caribbean. The course will explore this relationship beginning with a brief account of its role in colonial times and then go on to discuss in greater detail the key elements of its contemporary relationship. An important aspect of this is the African Caribbean community in Scotland whose contribution is often overlooked. It will conclude with an overview of work being done in Scotland to help reconstruction in Haiti after the earthquake.

Europe's first 'Great War' – the Thirty Years War 1618-48

Day: Monday

Time: 10.00-12.00

Starts: 19 January 2015 (8 meetings)

Seventeenth century Europe is remembered as the age of the Baroque and the 'Scientific Revolution', less well remembered is the series of bloody religious wars known as the 'Thirty Years War' which raged across Europe and left Germany devastated. Using a rich array of official documents, personal letters, newspapers and art, we will investigate Europe's first 'Great War' – from Ireland and Scotland to Poland and Russia. Through the eyes of princes and emperors, captains and soldiers, civilians and priests we will explore its 'all destructive fury': the causes and conduct of the war, its financial and human costs, and its role in shaping modern Europe. With 'interventionism' so fundamental to modern Western diplomacy, the lessons of the Thirty Years War highlight the fatal price of entanglement in other peoples' wars.

Goudou-Goudou: after the Earthquake: five years of reconstruction in Haiti

Day: Saturday

Time: 13.00-16.00

Starts: 17 January 2015 (1 meeting)

On January 12, 2010 a massive earthquake in Haiti flattened the capital, Port au Prince, and killed more than 250,000 people. The international community gave immediate help and promised assistance to rebuild a better Haiti. A little of it has been delivered but much has not and the difficulties facing the people of Haiti remain immense. But despite that there is a determination to rebuild and reconstruct supported by a dynamic history of cultural resistance to oppression and exploitation.

DAY EVENT

1945: Seventy years on

Day: Saturday

Time: 10.00-16.00

Starts: 9 May 2015 (1 meeting)

This day event is being held very near the seventieth anniversary of V-E Day ('Victory in Europe Day'), 8 May 1945. This was one of the most significant dates in the history of the twentieth century: Hitler was dead and Nazi Germany had surrendered, with its crimes against humanity now fully exposed. The year 1945 also marked the beginning of a new historical era. Concentrated in a short period were radical political change in Europe, the first use of nuclear weapons, the onset of the Cold War, and the beginning of the end of the European empires. There will be four sessions in this one-day course; in each an expert will talk about the end of its war and its consequences, and open a discussion.

War, Reformation and Union: Scotland 1500-1715

Day: Wednesday

Time: 10.00-12.00

Starts: 24 September 2014

(Please note there will be no meeting held on 15 October 2014) (22 meetings)

The sixteenth and seventeenth centuries were two of the most turbulent and momentous in the history of Scotland. The impact of the religious disruption of the Reformation, conflict with the 'auld enemy', civil wars and relations with Ireland is still evident. Increasingly close contacts between Scotland and England, notably through the Union of the Crowns and the later Union of the Parliaments, created modern Britain and made the Scots 'British'. The major focus will be on the political, religious and military processes which transformed Scotland from an independent European power in 1500 to a part of a 'Greater Britain' in 1707 – a process which was never inevitable.

British radicals, rebels and revolutionaries 1790-1926

Day: Monday

Time: 13.00-15.00

Starts: 6 October 2014 (8 meetings)

This course looks at some of the unheralded men and women of British history who swam against the tide of the times that they lived in. Beginning with Tom Paine and the radical movement of the 1790s we move on to consider the challenges and dangers faced by individuals and groups who stood up for their rights as industrialisation and the growth of towns and cities got underway. Trade unionism, freedom of speech and voting rights for the working classes and women of all classes were considered as dangerous ideas at one time or another. Moving on the 20th century, we look at how the aims of the early feminists and socialists were translated into political realities and we consider the compromises that were made along the way.

Starts: 9 October 2014 (8 meetings)

Glasgow expanded to include settlements which had been on its outskirts, some industrial while others were residential. There are all sorts of quirky details to be discovered in these areas. This course we will be looking at areas such as Govanhill, Crosshill, Langside, and perhaps Dennistoun and Hyndland. Though some of you having been looking at such areas before, all are welcome to come on this further discovery.

Scottish music hall, variety and pantomime

Day: Saturday
Time: 10.00-12.00
Starts: 8 November 2014 (5 meetings)

Following its successful introduction last year, this expanded course explores the history of Scottish music hall, from its origins in earlier theatre, fairground geggies and the National Drama to the emergence of variety and the great stars of the interwar years such as Tommy Lorne, Harry Gordon and Dave Willis. Culminating in the story of Scottish pantomime, the course combines illustrated talks featuring audio and archive film clips with the opportunity to share memories of Scottish pantomime and variety. Presented in association with the King's Theatre Glasgow and the University of Glasgow Library Scottish Theatre Archive, the course also includes a visit to the Archive, and the opportunity to buy tickets at a special group rate for a performance of Peter Pan at the King's Theatre (not included in the course fee).

DAY EVENT

~~The road to the Scottish Parliament~~

~~Day: Saturday
Time: 10.00-16.00
Starts: 22 November 2014 (1 meeting)~~

~~In this day event we shall explore, through songs, images, and discussion, Scottish devolution and independence campaigns from 1296 to 2014. Whilst the Wars of Independence, the Union of the Crowns, the Jacobite Risings and the Act of Union are all included, the event concentrates especially on the 20th century with a consideration of the synergies shared by independence and devolution campaigns and activism arising from the Scottish tradition of political radicalism.~~

The Scots: who do we think we are?

Day: Tuesday
Time: 10.00-12.00
Starts: 20 January 2015 (8 meetings)

Following the events of 2014 (the Commonwealth Games, the Year of Homecoming and, of course, the referendum) – all of which have heightened Scotland’s profile – it is a good time to take stock of ourselves and to think about the kind of country we live in. This course explores our sense of identity as a nation and the ways in which that may have changed in recent years, as well as some of the imagery which has been used to depict Scotland both at home and abroad. We will also look at the nature of Scottish society and some of the different communities who make up Scotland, as well as Scottish communities living overseas in the diaspora.

Glasgow & West of Scotland Branch of the Historical Association

The Historical Association is for everyone interested in history. From year to year our programme follows themes: what has shaped our history and culture; how history is written; historiography; individuals who have made a difference to our society; book events where members share an outstanding history text of their choice.

Our programme arises out of the suggestions of our members and supporters. Each year we have six events – either talks by individual speakers or a panel of experts who cover different aspects of the chosen topic. For our Branch programme, see www.historicalassociation.org.uk under branch programmes. From October to April (Excluding January) we meet in Hillhead Library at 5.30pm on the second Thursday of each month. For further information, contact the Secretary: gwsbhistoricalassociation@gmail.com

Enrolment opens on Monday 11th August 2014. Enrol by post, telephone or in person. See page 4 for more details.

Scottish, Irish and Local

Friends of Glasgow West – Glasgow's West End is internationally recognized for its Victorian and Edwardian tenements, terraces and villas, 300 listed buildings, churches, Byres Road, University campus, Botanic Gardens and Kelvingrove Art Gallery. Friends of Glasgow West aim to enhance and promote this outstanding heritage. For over 20 years, the "West End Lectures" in this catalogue have offered insight into this much-loved place, and we select eight new speakers and topics every year. In spring 2015 Colin MacKay, BBC Journalist and Broadcaster, hosts the series, and presents an illustrated lecture himself. We provide Walks and Talks in the West End Festival, and commissioned Gordon Urquhart's highly-acclaimed West End Heritage Trails. FGW checks planning applications, responds to consultations, holds meetings and trips, and publishes a quarterly Members' Newsletter. Please consider becoming one of our members!

"The lecturer brought the subject to life and re-ignited my interest in Scottish history."

West End Lectures

Early enrolment helps

If a course struggles to recruit students, it may have to be cancelled a week or two in advance of the first class. This allows those who have enrolled to find an alternative activity and also frees up badly-needed teaching space. If students can enrol at least two weeks before the starting date it helps us to keep courses running and plan the best use of teaching rooms.

German Stage 4

Day: Wednesday
Time: 19.15-21.15
Starts: 8 October 2014 (20 meetings)

Dieser Kurs, in dem wir uns praktisch nur auf Deutsch verständigen wollen, bietet sich für Lerner an, die German Stage 3 absolviert oder ein vergleichbares Niveau erreicht haben. Der Schwerpunkt liegt im freien Sprechen, wozu viele Stimuli sowie Diskussionen und Partnerarbeit animieren sollen. Literarische Kurzformen, Liedtexte, Lyrik, Hörspiel-, Film- und Fernsehausschnitte sollen bei den Kursteilnehmern auch Lese- und Hörverstehen schärfen. Grammatik wird nach Wunsch behandelt und dem Bedarf der jeweiligen Teilnehmergruppe angepasst. Ein Kursbuch ist nicht erforderlich, die Materialien werden vom Tutor zusammengestellt. 'Brauchbare' Wörterbücher sind im Unterricht aber mehr als gern gesehen. Das Schriftliche hat in dieser Stufe ebenfalls eine ganz zentrale Rolle, steht und fällt aber ganz erheblich mit der Schreibbereitschaft der Teilnehmer während der 20 Kurswochen.

Getting more out of poetry

Day: Wednesday
Time: 14.00-16.00
Starts: 1 October 2014 (18 meetings)

There is no poeTRY without that little word 'try' and this new class is perfect for anyone wishing to give writing a go. We are ALL artists and every authentically lived, happy, useful and balanced life is an evolving work of art. 'To be yourself and to make that self worth being', was, for Hugh MacDiarmid the purpose of poetry. Every poet may be a special sort of person; but every person is DEFINITELY a special sort of poet. Language is power. By helping us understand how others think and feel, reading and writing poetry develops self-expression, self-realisation and self-fulfilment. It broadens and deepens us. And it's fun! Poetry is also the ultimate 'transferable skill'. This course is suitable for writers of all levels of experience or none.

Getting more out of creative writing

Day: Thursday
Time: 18.00-20.00
Starts: 2 October 2014 (18 meetings)

EVERYONE can benefit from reading and writing poetry and this class is designed to help ANYONE starting to write, or wishing to develop their poetry. Each week a compositional task is assigned and the resulting poems are discussed at the next session. Carefully chosen examples of the art, craft and inspiration of poetry are analysed alongside the work of course participants. An atmosphere of generous cooperation and constructive candour informs every aspect of this informal yet exacting course. Many students have gone on to publish, bring out books, win awards or to prestigious post-graduate degrees. Others have simply got greater fun and fulfillment from poetry and from being part of a nurturing, stimulating and supportive group of fellow practitioners. The tutor is one of Scotland's most respected poets and is an Honorary Teaching Fellow in the School of Education.

HALF-DAY EVENT

Franz Kafka: a tribute night

Day: Wednesday

Time: 18.30-21.00

Starts: 22 October 2014 (1 meeting)

Place: STUC Building, Woodlands Road, Glasgow

Franz Kafka (1883 – 1924) is rightly regarded as one of the most important writers of the twentieth century. His influence extends across the modern and contemporary novel, cinema, theatre, radio, dance and other art forms. The prevalence of the term 'Kafkaesque' underlines his continuing cultural impact. The writers he has influenced include Albert Camus, Jorge Luis Borges and James Kelman. In cinema his influence can be seen in the work of film makers such as Orson Welles and David Lynch. In the year of the ninetieth anniversary of his death, this tribute night will feature readings of works by Kafka – fragments, short stories and extracts from novels. In addition, works inspired by Kafka and written by creative writing students of the Centre for Open Studies will be premiered. The evening will also feature music and discussion.

Dialogue in fiction

Day: Saturday

Time: 10.00-16.00

Starts: 1 November 2014 (1 meeting)

This is a practical one day course that focuses on dialogue in fiction. The following questions will be addressed. How is successful dialogue constructed? What techniques do writers use to create dialogue? Why is some dialogue flat and unconvincing? What is movement within dialogue? How is character developed through dialogue? What methods do writers use to capture 'realistic speech'? Practical examples from fiction will be used throughout the day and students will have the chance to write in class and leave with a deeper understanding of how dialogue functions.

DAY EVENT

Starting here

Day: Saturday

Time: 10.00-16.00

Starts: 15 November 2014 (1 meeting)

~~Countries have to be imagined into existence. They are poems before they are politics. For Robert Burns, Scotland was a song. This day school explores the idea of Scotland through the reading, and writing of poetry. We will look at some of the extraordinary poems that explore and indeed helped create our national identity (or identities). There will be group discussion of work brought along by course participants. Those attending will attempt some writing on an assigned theme. Prospects for the poetry of the post-referendum nation will be rehearsed and contested. Beginning writers will be encouraged, developing poets nurtured, experienced ones, stimulated anew. Ideally, enrollees will have with them a poem, a pen and a propensity to talk and listen. But ANYONE with ANY interest in Scotland's literary culture and future will be welcome, all in an atmosphere of easygoing informality and constructive candour: academic rigour as instructive fun.~~

Early enrolment helps

If a course struggles to recruit students, it may have to be cancelled a week or two in advance of the first class. This allows those who have enrolled to find an alternative activity and also frees up badly-needed teaching space. If students can enrol at least two weeks before the starting date it helps us to keep courses running and plan the best use of teaching rooms.

Literature

The Imperfect Garden: Measure for Measure and Michel de Montaigne

Day: Wednesday
Time: 13.00-15.00
Starts: 21 January 2015 (10 meetings)

1604. Shakespeare has a new play out on Boxing Day, a winter-cold cosmos of diplomacy and self-discovery. And John Florio has recently brought out his luminous translation of Montaigne's Essays. Russian history in Russian opera

Day: Monday

Time: 14.00-16.00

Starts: 6 October 2014 (8 meetings)

Nineteenth-century Russian opera is unusual in often finding subjects not from just any nation's history but from crucial turning-points in the Russian past, sometimes as reflected through the national literary heritage. We focus on the historical perspectives offered by A Life for the Tsar, Boris Godunov, Khovanshchina and Prince Igor, all created against the backdrop of post-Napoleonic heightened national consciousness.

The operas of Richard Strauss (1864-1949)

Day: Saturday

Time: 10.00-16.00

Starts: 25 October 2014 (1 meeting)

Strauss enriched music with compositions in many forms, perhaps nowhere more than by his fifteen operas. They span the gamut from Guntram, by way of Salome, Elektra and Der Rosenkavalier and the other works written in collaboration with Hofmannstahl, all the way to Capriccio, and represent half a century lived in the musical limelight. The course offers a conspectus of this large repertoire.

DAY EVENT

Sir Walter Scott: literature, music and the fine arts

Day: Saturday

Time: 10.00-16.00

Starts: 29 November 2014 (1 meeting)

"'Tis two hundred years since....": Sir Walter Scott's Waverley Novels, art and music. In 1814 a then anonymous author began publishing a series of books which resonated powerfully in the work of painters and composers, mainly during the first half of the nineteenth century. After an outline of the character and significance of Scott's activity, we consider examples in vision and sound, concentrating on Scottish subjects, in the hands primarily of leading British, French and Italian artists.

Scottish Modernism: literature, music, painting and Erik Chisholm

Day: Saturday

Time: 10.00-16.00

Starts: 6 June 2015 (1 meeting)

Erik Chisholm (1904-1965) was a vital force in the arts at a crucial time in Scotland in the 1920s and 1930s, bringing internationally significant figures like Bartók to Scotland. His activities as composer, performer and catalyst are set in the context of his contemporaries – Ronald Center and F G Scott, Lewis Grassie Gibbon and MacDiarmid, J D Fergusson and Stanley Cursiter. The presentation will be abundantly illustrated in sound and vision. A series of performances is being arranged to coincide with the 50th anniversary of Chisholm's death – details will be available later.

Philosophy and Religious Studies

~~Introduction to philosophy: reason and argument~~

~~Day: Monday~~

~~Time: 19.00-21.00~~

~~Starts: 22 September 2014 (22 meetings)~~

~~This course will concentrate on the peculiar nature of philosophical problems. It will look at how we recognise and construct sound arguments in dealing with these problems, and there will be a consideration of various reasoning procedures that are applied to the arguments of modern social and political thought.~~

~~Introduction to philosophy of mind~~

~~Day: Tuesday~~

~~Time: 19.00-21.00~~

~~Starts: 23 September 2014 (22 meetings)~~

~~We instinctively distinguish between things in the world that have minds, such as humans, apes, or dolphins, and things that don't, such as rocks, trees, or stars; how about ants, bees or snails? What is it to have a mind, exactly? Is it to possess an immaterial soul-like thing? Is it merely to have a brain that functions in a certain way? Or something else? This course will address these and attendant questions in the philosophy of mind as well as in psychology, and cognitive science. The course is self-standing, but also prepares students for many other areas of study.~~

Philosophical ethics of Socrates, Plato and Aristotle

Day: Wednesday

Time: 19.00-21.00

Starts: 24 September 2014 (22 meetings)

This course will examine Greek ethics focusing on Socrates, Plato and Aristotle. At the centre will be Plato's Republic and Aristotle's Nicomachean Ethics. It is a stand-alone course and can be taken as a foundation course for many other areas of study. Anyone with an interest in western philosophy of any period in time will find this course useful as we go back to the basics of western philosophy and look at the questions which are still with us today, such "how should we live?", "what is happiness?" and "what is justice?"

Philosophy and emotion

Day: Thursday

Time: 19.00-21.00

Starts: 25 September 2014 (22 meetings)

What are emotions? Are they simply feelings, blind irrational forces? Or do they have a deeper connection with human understanding? The first part of this course explores theories about what emotions are, from antiquity to the present day, including those of Aristotle, the Stoics, Darwin, William James, Freud, and others. In the second part we ask why emotions matter to us; is it because of how they feel, the goals they help us achieve, or something else? We consider the connection between emotion and moral value, and the question of our responsibility for our emotions.

~~Philosophy in technicolour!~~

~~Day: Tuesday~~

~~Time: 14.00-16.00~~

~~Starts: 30 September 2014 (8 meetings)~~

~~This course introduces a variety of philosophical issues as explored in works of film and television alongside a discussion of some of the central themes in the philosophy of art. We will address questions like "what is art?" and "are the origins of art biological or cultural?" And we will look at the work of Alfred Hitchcock, Woody Allen, Quentin Tarantino, Larry David, Monty Python, and David Simon. In this tour of some of the more erudite parts of popular culture, the philosophy of many great thinkers will be examined, including: Socrates, Plato, Thomas Hobbes, John Locke, David Hume, Rousseau, Descartes, Kant, and John Stuart Mill.~~

Philosophy and music

Day: Thursday

Time: 14.00-16.00

Starts: 2 October 2014 (8 meetings)

Why does music matter to us? Since music has no words, how can it have meaning? Can music tell stories or express emotions? Should we judge rock or jazz music by different standards to those we use when appreciating "classical" music? What does it mean to say that music is sentimental or profound? This course looks at some of the recent debates in the contemporary philosophy of music.

~~What is love? Plato's Symposium~~

~~Day: Tuesday~~

~~Time: 10.00-12.00~~

~~Starts: 7 October 2014 (8 meetings)~~

~~Love, wine and philosophy! The Symposium is one of Plato's most famous and accessible works. Written in the 4th century BC, it is set at a dinner party attended by a number of prominent ancient Athenians, including the philosopher Socrates. Whilst enjoying several glasses of wine, the guests take it in turn to speak of love. The book is also a Trojan Horse for some of Plato's wider philosophical ideas and has had a significant influence on later thinkers. Students will gain a fuller insight into the foundations of the western philosophical tradition and other works of Plato.~~

Is science compatible with religion?

Day: Saturday

Time: 10.00-16.00

Starts: 22 November 2014 (1 meeting)

The theory of evolution is inconsistent with the literal account of human origins given in Genesis and other religious works. Other scientific theories are inconsistent with miracles, the efficacy of prayer, and the existence of supernatural beings that intervene in the natural order. But does this mean that religious belief in general is incompatible with a scientific worldview? This day-school will address this question by examining different conceptions of science and religion to determine whether any are consistent.

The body in western thought

Day: Monday
Time: 14.00-16.00
Starts: 19 January 2015 (8 meetings)

Having a body is a central fact of human existence, but how do our bodies relate to who we and others are and the way we experience the world? Are we the same thing as our bodies? Do we survive death and, if so, is this with our bodies, or not? Is the way we experience our bodies biologically inevitable, or is it shaped by our social and political context? How do sex and gender relate to the body? We will explore these questions, examining some of the most influential answers in western thought, from ancient philosophy to modern queer theory.

Life, the universe and everything! An introduction to philosophy

Day: Wednesday
Time: 14.00-16.00
Starts: 21 January 2015 (8 meetings)

What is philosophy? What is it to philosophise? What do philosophers do? This course will answer these questions by charting the history of modern philosophy up to the present day, covering all the main areas of philosophy: metaphysics (the study of the ultimate nature of reality), epistemology (the study of knowledge and justified belief), value theory (the study of ethical, political, religious and aesthetic value), and logic (the study of reason). Along the way, the work of key figures from the history of philosophy will be discussed, including Socrates, Plato, Aristotle, Hume, Kant, Mill, and Russell, as well as more contemporary thinkers.

DAY EVENT

Science fiction and philosophyDay: SaturdayTime: 10.00-16.00Starts: 31 January 2015 (1 meeting)

In this class we will examine philosophical issues commonly encountered to science fiction; including: (1) Time Travel: what happens if I go back and kill my grandfather? What does considering such questions tell us about the nature of time? (2) Personal Identity: if my Star Trek teleporter malfunctions and creates two copies of me while destroying the original, which copy is me? What does considering this issue tell us about the nature of the self? (3) The Matrix: is the world as it appears? Can you know that you are not in the Matrix, or a brain in a jar being supplied experiences by electrodes? What does considering these questions tell us about the nature of knowledge, perception, and our relationship with the world?

HALF-DAY EVENT

Famous philosophers half day series: DescartesDay: SaturdayTime: 10.00-13.00Starts: 7 February 2015 (1 meeting)

Descartes is often dubbed the father of modern philosophy; his radical separation of mind and body, and insistence on logic (rather than observation) as a route to knowledge, was at the heart of a revolution in philosophy that reverberates to this day, shaping not only modern philosophy but also literature, art, film, religion, politics and media. Nor can we get to grips with ancient or medieval thought without understanding how Descartes has given us an – often distorting – lens through which to gaze at them. Anyone interested in any aspect of western philosophy or theology will find this introduction to Descartes invaluable.

HALF-DAY EVENT

Famous philosophers half day series: HumeDay: SaturdayTime: 10.00-13.00Starts: 14 February 2015 (1 meeting)

Hume argued that our most basic ways of thinking about ourselves and the world – ways of thinking shared by all people in all cultures at all times – are not based on experience or reason but are held in place simply by custom and habit. His work is still enormously influential. He is not just the most important Scottish philosopher, he may well be the most important philosopher full stop! Come and find out why he is still treated the world over as one of the most important thinkers who has ever lived.

HALF-DAY EVENT

Famous philosophers half day series: KantDay: SaturdayTime: 10.00-13.00Starts: 21 February 2015 (1 meeting)

Kant transformed philosophy. More than any other philosopher he attempted to reconcile human freedom with the growth of scientific understanding and to find a place for freedom, reason and aesthetic pleasure in a mechanistic world. Autonomy, moral thought and the role of emotion; whether we can know the world as it is – all these are issues to which Kant made key contributions. Even today, a grasp of Kant's arguments remains essential for anyone interested in these topics.

DAY EVENT

Are we still human?Day: SaturdayTime: 10.00-16.00Starts: 21 February 2015 (1 meeting)

Technological and medical advances mean that the possibilities of human existence are constrained less and less by what our bodies are capable of. At the extreme, will we one day be able to “upload” human consciousness into computer memory? We will ask if we are still “human” and speculate about the possible lives of our distant descendants.

HALF-DAY EVENT

Famous philosophers half day series: HegelDay: SaturdayTime: 10.00-13.00Starts: 28 February 2015 (1 meeting)

Hegel treats the community of persons as more fundamental than individual persons. He stresses that human life is essentially social and historical – that to be an individual person is to take up a series of socially instituted roles (husband, father, friend, plumber, teacher, footballer...). Hegel's anti-individualism is the most potent and plausible alternative to the individualism that is at the heart of contemporary western culture. He has an exciting grand vision of reality as essentially rational, knowable and meaningful.

“With DSM-5 [The Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders] you can say everybody is sick!” So complained an American psychiatrist. But do we need to resort to psychiatric help and expensive medicine to deal with mental and psychological difficulties we encounter in our daily lives? This course may help you to identify when things go out of control and how to stop them getting worse.

Buddhism in more detail

Day: Saturday
Time: 10.00-16.00
Starts: 14 March 2015 (1 meeting)

This course is for those who have a basic understanding of Buddhism but would like to know more. It offers a mix of Buddhist philosophy and an outline of Buddhist practice as well as a look at the relationships to western philosophy. There are two tutors each with different expertise in Buddhism from which to draw.

HALF-DAY EVENT

Famous philosophers half day series: Schopenhauer

Day: Saturday
Time: 10.00-13.00
Starts: 28 March 2015 (1 meeting)

For Schopenhauer life is a pointless work-filled drudge where unsatisfied cravings continue until we cease to exist and return to a state where there is no God or judgement on our behaviour. If life were any better then we'd die of boredom. This is the worst of all possible worlds but there is a way to overcome the pointlessness of existence. Come and find out how.

Business ethics

Day: Online course
Starts: Week beginning 13 April 2015 (8 sessions)

Is there any Ethics in Business or is the expression “Business Ethics” an oxymoron or a paradox? Find out how you can create and organise a business on the basis of a solid ethical and moral foundation. Whether you are a manager, a CEO or an employee you will find benefit through this course in your moral decision making in a business environment. Particular emphasis will be given to the study of practical application of ethical theory through concrete business study cases.

The Society was founded over 200 years ago “to promote the physical, natural, mental and moral sciences, and the arts of design with their applications” – in other words to discuss any interesting subject whatsoever.

Our 213th Session begins on Wednesday, 1st October 2014 at 7.30pm with Professor Carol Adams of Monash University speaking on “Responsibility in Business”. Subsequent topics include the role of philosophy in society, healthy cognitive ageing, engineering and noise, World War I, the V&A at Dundee and women in science; all talks to be given by acknowledged authorities in their fields. The full 2014-15 programme is available at our website at www.royalphil.org

Come join us at our Wednesday evening lectures: twelve in each session, with fortnightly lectures from October to March, followed by a free glass of wine and a chance to discuss the talk informally with other members. There is no obligation to become a member – although, of course, we hope you will do so and thus add to our continuing vitality.

Meetings are on Wednesdays at 7.30pm at the Main Lecture Theatre John Anderson Building, Strathclyde University, Rottenrow East, Glasgow G4 0NG

Women philosophers

Day: Tuesday
Time: 13.00-15.00
Starts: 14 April 2015 (6 meetings)

In this course we'll explore the thought of six key female philosophers covering topics such as human moral agency, race relations, and existentialism. Text book philosophy is often written as if there are no female philosophers to speak of. These insightful philosophers show the poverty of this approach and offer us a collection of voices from different female perspectives. We start with Mary Wollstonecraft, political philosopher and ethicist of the eighteenth century, and move onto later philosophers such as Elizabeth Anscombe and Angela Davis – thinkers whose philosophy has variously shaped the discipline and brought them to the coal-face of contemporary political discourse.

Wittgenstein

Day: Wednesday
Time: 14.00-16.00
Starts: 15 April 2015 (6 meetings)

Wittgenstein argues that there can be no such thing as a theory or picture of the world which shows what different kinds of things there ultimately are and how they fit together. If we look for such a theory or picture in philosophy, religion or science, we are like Pooh Bear and Christopher Robin looking for the East Pole. Wittgenstein is sometimes considered the most radical and important of modern philosophers: he doesn't contribute another theory or picture to compete with those we already have – he explains (exactly) why no such theory or picture is even possible.

DAY EVENT It's alive! The philosophy of Artificial Intelligence

Day: Saturday
Time: 10.00-16.00
Starts: 25 April 2015 (1 meeting)

Can machines be conscious? If not, why not? If machines can be conscious, how can they, and what obstacles need to be overcome until we can build some? If conscious machines are ever built will this make human beings obsolete? This course will address these questions and more in the light of the very latest research in the philosophy of mind and cognitive science.

HALF-DAY EVENT A brief introduction to reasoning and argument

Day: Monday
Time: 14.00-16.00
Starts: 27 April 2015 (3 meetings)

This course will use a practical and interactive approach to explore how, through applying the tools of philosophy, you can evaluate the "soundness" of arguments and present sound arguments. It is important to be alert to false arguments and to others' attempts to persuade you through appealing to your emotions. This course will increase your alertness to these situations through analysing real-life instances, gleaned from newspapers, TV and radio.

HALF-DAY EVENT Famous philosophers half day series: Nietzsche

Day: Saturday
Time: 10.00-13.00
Starts: 2 May 2015 (1 meeting)

Nietzsche's influence today remains enormous and extends far beyond the confines of philosophy. But what did he believe? In what sense was he a philosopher? Was he the first post-modernist? We will explore some key aspects of Nietzsche's thought; his perspectivism, his ideas about tragedy, music and culture, the nature of value, the problem of modernity and his ideal of how we should try to live.

DAY EVENT God, faith, science and reason: an introduction to the Philosophy of Religion

Day: Saturday
Time: 10.00-16.00
Starts: 16 May 2015 (1 meeting)

Is there a God? How do we answer that question? Can we? Should a rational person follow a religion and also believe in the results of natural science? What is a religion, anyway? This course will provide answers to these and related questions by examining some of the classic arguments discussed in the philosophy of religion by great historical thinkers such as Plato, Leibniz and Hume, as well as more contemporary figures such as Alvin Plantinga.

Famous philosophers half day series: Bertrand Russell

Day: Saturday

Time: 10.00-13.00

Starts: 23 May 2015 (1 meeting)

Bertrand Russell (1872-1970) was perhaps one of the most prolific and most influential of British philosophers in the twentieth century. Philosopher, Social Activist, Educational Reformer, Pacifist and Humanist, he was often the target of both admiration and criticism. In this course we will study three particular aspects of his work: his early critique of Neo-Hegelianism in Logic, Language and Mathematics, his attempt at Educational Reform and his engagement and support to the Nuclear Disarmament and the Peace Movement against the Vietnam War.

Astronomy and Physics

Hands-on space Astronomy

Day: Wednesday
Time: 19.30-21.30
Starts: 24 September 2014 (22 meetings)

This is a golden age for Astronomy, with vast quantities of leading-edge data freely available and computers to help us to use them. These possibilities will enable us to explore modern astrophysics, from the solar system to the distant galaxies.

You should have a little knowledge of Astronomy, e.g. from Open Studies courses, and be able to use a PC.

Early enrolment helps

If a course struggles to recruit students, it may have to be cancelled a week or two in advance of the first class. This allows those who have enrolled to find an alternative activity and also frees up badly-needed teaching space. If students can enrol at least two weeks before the starting date it helps us to keep courses running and plan the best use of teaching rooms.

Biology

Introduction to evolution and ecology

Day: Monday

Time: 19.00-21.00

Starts: 22 September 2014 (22 meetings)

This course provides a comprehensive introduction to biological evolution and ecology that explain the diversity of life on earth. You will learn how organisms evolved, how natural selection influences animal behaviour, what determines plant and animal distribution and how natural ecosystems function. We will study a range of species and different habitats through illustrated lectures and discussion.

In Semester 1 there will be two Saturday study days (am only) and in Semester 2 one Saturday (full day) zoo visit.

Marine biology (Distance Course)

Day: Online and Residential

Starts: Week beginning 12 January 2015

This course will introduce you to the basic principles that rule life in the sea and to the biodiversity of marine environments. It is a ten-week distance study course followed by a one-week residential field course (11-15 May 2015) at the Field Studies Council Millport centre, Isle of Cumbrae. The course will be taught by providing lectures and learning resources on the WWW with weekly on-line group tutorials. The field course will put theory into practice and emphasis will be on identifying marine species and studying local habitats.

CertHE Credits: 20 at Level 1

Marine mammal field course

Day: Residential

Starts: 10-17th July 2015

This course will introduce you to the diversity, behaviour and ecology of seals, whales and dolphins. We focus on learning how to identify and record the behaviour of UK species and study how they are adapted to their aquatic existence. The course includes lectures, laboratory sessions and field work on research vessels in the Firth of Clyde on the west coast of Scotland.

The course is residential (full board) and is based at FSC Millport, Isle of Cumbrae. This course involves part-time and full-time students from four participating UK universities.

Introducing evolution

Day: Tuesday

Time: 11.00-13.00

Starts: 7 October 2014 (8 meetings)

This course provides an introduction to biological evolution that explains the diversity of life on Earth. Firstly, we will explore the historical development of evolution through the work of Darwin, Wallace and contemporary figures such as Dawkins and Jones. Following this, the link between evolution and animal behaviour will be examined using examples from across the animal kingdom. The course will consist of talks, discussion and a museum visit.

DAY EVENT

Animal welfare

Day: Saturday

Time: 11.00-16.00

Starts: 15 November 2014 (1 meeting)

We interact with animals in our society in wide range of contexts, many of which give rise to welfare concerns. In this one day course we will introduce participants to the topic of animal welfare and provide them with an understanding of key underpinning scientific and ethical concepts. Welfare issues relating to different forms of animal use will be outlined, and there will be time for discussion of different perspectives on their acceptability. We will explain the aims, approaches and limitations of welfare research and highlight these in current work via a selection of ongoing studies in animal welfare presented by researchers working in this field.

Introducing ecology

Day: Tuesday

Time: 11.00-13.00

Starts: 20 January 2015 (8 meetings)

The aim of this course is to introduce students to the principles of ecology. How plant and animal populations along with climate and landscape create unique eco systems. We will discuss the physical and biological factors that influence the distribution and population size of organisms. Drawing on examples from eco systems in Scotland the course will explore the concept of biodiversity, how it can be measured and importantly why it should be conserved. The course will be taught through talks, discussion and museum visit.

THE GEOLOGICAL SOCIETY OF GLASGOW

The Geographical Society of Glasgow was founded in 1858 to encourage the study of geology in Scotland and especially in the West of Scotland. The society's interests are now planet-wide and include all aspects of this subject, and the many exciting new developments now taking place in world geology. The society offers a programme of evening lectures and an extensive range of summer field excursions in Scotland and elsewhere. Membership is open to all and we especially welcome those who wish to take up geology for the first time.

The Glasgow City of Science partnership involves an eclectic mix of members ranging from arts and culture organisations to academia, business and government. What all of these organisations have in common is a joint vision – to boost economic growth by working together to raise the profile of Glasgow and the West of Scotland as a world-class region of science, culture and place. Engaging the public and learners in exciting ways, to appreciate both the value and relevance of science to their lives, and mainstreaming science into wider culture (the TV, media, the arts) are also key aspirations.

Current Glasgow City of Science activities include a young Glasgow jury for the European Science and TV and New Media Awards; a digital project aimed at up-skilling disadvantaged young people; the OPAL (or Open Air Laboratories) environmental protection, citizen science project; a hand hygiene world record attempt in primary schools, and a mass participation photography project entitled Science Camera Action. Earth Science

Introduction to the composition and structure of the Earth

Day: Wednesday
Time: 19.30-21.30
Starts: 24 September 2014 (22 meetings)

A study will be made of scientific evidence for present-day models of the Earth's evolution and internal structure and how this complements geological evidence for the theory of plate tectonics. The nature of internal processes will be investigated through the study of rocks and minerals, volcanic activity, earthquakes, structural forms and metamorphism. Processes including erosion, transportation and deposition of sediments will be examined in a wide variety of surface environments and note taken of the role of palaeontology in geology. Students should acquire basic skills in identification of rocks and minerals in the laboratory and in the field. Together with: Evolution of the earth, life and environments (offered next session), these two courses cover the complete syllabus of level 1 Earth Science.

Introducing geology

Day: Tuesday
Time: 19.30-21.30
Starts: 30 September 2014 (10 meetings)

Geology is the study of our planet, Earth. Earthquakes, volcanoes, climate, rivers, glaciers and life have all shaped the Earth during its 4.5 billion year history. We will examine these processes with examples from around the globe and you will get to explore the intricate and beautiful world of rocks, minerals and fossils. Scotland has some of the most diverse and accessible geology in the world, and you will see many examples in our classes. By the end of the course you should have achieved the basic skills to start exploring geology yourself!

Geology around the Mediterranean

Day: Thursday
Time: 14.00-16.00
Starts: 9 October 2014 (18 meetings)

Most of us have been to the Mediterranean region on holiday and seen its rocks and even volcanoes. Now is a chance to learn something about its geological evolution from part of Gondwana, to the Tethys Ocean, its closure, and Alpine mountain building. Along the way we will study characteristic rocks, minerals, and fossils. Students will also be able to suggest areas for study.

DAY EVENT The geology of Mars

Day: Saturday
Time: 09.30-16.30
Starts: 7 February 2015 (1 meeting)

An introduction to the geology of this fascinating planet, suitable for those with at least a little experience of geology or astronomy who wish to expand their knowledge of planetary science. We will explore the diverse surface terrains of the Red Planet, look in detail at some of its rocks and try to find out what stories they have to tell. You will see how geology is being explored right now on the surface of Mars and try out some investigations of your own. Finally, we will consider whether Mars has, or ever had, the conditions to support life.

This year a number of strategies have been implemented to try and optimise the learning opportunities for current and future students.

A Psychology Certificate in Higher Education has been introduced which requires 80 of the 120 CertHE Credits to be Psychology specific. A range of 5-hour short tasting courses will allow students to engage with new subjects and a requests for distance learning opportunities has been met through the introduction of an online course "What can psychology tell us about disability?"

We have a fantastic team of tutors on board and it seems appropriate to share some of last year's feedback, which highlights their skills.

"Much learnt – and it could be understood by me – a complete novice!"

"I would attend another course with this lecturer."

"Lots of different types of activities to keep one's attention."

"(I benefitted from the opportunity) to meet people from all different backgrounds looking for different things from the course."

"Enabled me to consider applying to Uni and gave me confidence to do so."

I hope these quotes help to ignite a passion to join us and also reassure individuals with anxieties about engaging with learning that our sessions offer a positive and welcoming environment.

Early enrolment helps

If a course struggles to recruit students, it may have to be cancelled a week or two in advance of the first class. This allows those who have enrolled to find an alternative activity and also frees up badly-needed teaching space. If students can enrol at least two weeks before the starting date it helps us to keep courses running and plan the best use of teaching rooms.

Day: Mondays from 12 January 2015

Time: 19.00-21.00 (11 meetings)

This course will provide an overview of health psychology and its contribution to our understanding of the factors influencing health, illness and well-being. The application of health psychology in public and private industries and to various population groups will also be covered. This course will introduce topics including stress, pain, communication, risk perception and social cognitions models. Sessions will include taught components as well as interactive discussions, group work and quizzes.

CertHE credits: 10 at level 1

Tutors: Deirdre Holly BA MSc MSc DPpsych and Alyssa Gillinsky BSc MSc

Cost: £115 Code: 16614

MONDAY

Psychology of addictions

Day: Mondays from 22 September 2014

Time: 18.00-21.00 (17 meetings)

This course focuses on understanding what addictions are; how they are different from obsessions, compulsions and mere bad habits; how they develop and are overcome with reference to alcohol, drugs, sex, gambling, eating and other excessive behaviours in which people can become trapped.

TUESDAY

Fundamentals of psychology

Day: Tuesdays from 23 September 2014 and 6 Saturdays

Time: 19.00-21.00 (Tuesday); 10.00-16.00 (Saturday)

Number of meetings: 23 Tuesdays and 6 Saturdays

Scientists have studied human behaviour, cognition and development for only about 200 years, however in that time our understanding of the human mind has undergone radical changes.

This team-taught course provides insight into how psychologists study human behaviour and introduces significant early concepts and modern psychological theories. Some of the topics include psychology's history, sleep, language development, memory and practical experimental methods. Areas of psychology include biological, cognitive and developmental. A small constituent of this course requires work with numbers as part of the practical section.

Cost: £460 Code: 17562

WEDNESDAY

Introduction to social psychology

Day: Wednesdays from 24 September 2014 719.00-21.00 (22 meetings)

This course provides insight into how in this dynamic social world, other people's lives are interwoven with ours. Interactions shape development, mental well-being and behaviour – often outside of our awareness. Some examples of topics under discussion will be: why adversity can be an aphrodisiac; how a whole nation might condone and participate in genocide; why prison guards need good training; why ordinary young people would riot in London.

Tutor: Niamh Friel MA
Cost: £230 Code: 16943

THURSDAY

Introduction to cognitive psychology

Day: Thursdays from 25 September 2014
Time: 19.00-21.00 (22 meetings)

As humans we interact with the world, think, reason and communicate with seeming effortless skill. Many of the processes that underlie these amazing feats elude our conscious mind. The study of human cognition spans how we think, how we communicate, how we remember, how we experience the world and how we reason. This course will introduce you to how psychologists have studied such complex processes and focus on how research is conducted to support the discoveries made. Credit is gained through completion of lab reports and a final exam.

TUESDAY

Stress

Day: Tuesdays from 3 March 2015
Time: 13:00-16:00 (5 meetings)

Do you suffer from stress? This subject has become very prominent in today's culture and has often instigated fierce debate as to its very existence. This course will investigate theories and research from a psychological aspect and by group discussion, psychological testing and questionnaires, will work towards a consensus of opinion on the subject.

WEDNESDAY

Personality differences

Day: Wednesdays from 8 October 2014
Time: 18.00-21.00 (5 meetings)

Possessing an attractive personality can enhance our social standing among friends, family and colleagues. In our daily lives, we often strive to present an "ideal" personality to the world rather than our "true" authentic selves. Should we persevere in aiming for an ideal rather than a "true self? Or are we justified in hiding characteristics which we have learned are distasteful to others? Through mini-lectures, discussion, questionnaires and quizzes, the course will present both sides of the argument.

Day: Monday

Time: 12.45-14.45

Starts: 06 October 2014 (8 meetings)

Place: Baljaffray Parish Church, Grampian Way, Baljaffray, Bearsden

Glasgow expanded to include settlements which had been on its outskirts, some industrial while others were residential. There are all sorts of quirky details to be discovered in these areas. This course will be looking at areas such as Govanhill, Crosshill, Langside and perhaps Dennistoun and Hyndland. Though some of you have been looking at such areas before, all are welcome to come on this further discovery.

Symbolism

Day: Monday

Time: 10.30-12.30

Starts: 19 January 2015 (8 meetings)

Place: Kilmardinny House Arts Centre, Bearsden

Symbolism was a major movement within the arts, spanning from the 1860s to the 1910s. It was practiced across Europe from Scotland to Russia, and found expression in a wide range of media, from art to music, literature to theatre. Yet today the history of art barely mentions it: how could something so big be forgotten? This course will introduce you to some of the key members of the Symbolist art circle, and discuss their work in relation to important social and artistic themes.

The Merchants House of Glasgow

The Merchants House of Glasgow is situated at the corner of George Square and West George Street and is home to one of the most ancient and prestigious organisations in the City of Glasgow.

The House is the old Merchant Guild and representative of the Mercantile Community. The Merchants House is a substantial Glasgow charity, with benevolence available on application from other organisations active in charitable fields in Glasgow and the local West of Scotland area.

The House also makes grants from its funds to various educational institutions and provides bursaries. For more information see: www.merchantshouse.org.uk/

In partnership with the University of Glasgow: Centre for Open Studies, the following lunchtime talks will take place between 12.00 – 13.00 in the Merchants House at a cost of £5.00 per person per talk. Please telephone 0141 330 1853/1860/2772 to reserve a place.

Scottish Union Learning is part of the Scottish Trades Union Congress (STUC). Scottish Union Learning works in partnership with unions to deliver learning to their members across Scotland; to encourage workers to upgrade and utilise their skills; to promote Modern Apprenticeships and to engage employers in the learning agenda.

Scottish Union Learning secures and manages the Learning Fund. Trade unions are able to access the Learning Fund to provide courses for members and workers in Scotland. If you are interested in becoming a union member, or to view an overview of the learning that is taking place in workplaces across Scotland, visit the Scottish Union Learning website!

Access Programme

Access 2014 – 2015

Our Access students come from a wide range of backgrounds with all sorts of qualifications (some with none); but what unites them is that they have been out of full-time education for at least a couple of years and all have the desire to return to education – and to have the chance to go on to university. We offer three separate programmes:

Access to Arts and Social Sciences
Access to Law, Business and Accountancy
Access to Science, Engineering and Nursing

Depending on other previous experience students may also be able to apply for entry to a wide range of vocational degrees. The Access Programme is recognised for entry to degree study at most other universities. In all cases students concentrate on two subjects and attend twice a week.

Enrolment and fees for the Access Programme

Please apply using the Access application form, available online together with lots more information about the programmes at www.gla.ac.uk/courses/openstudies/accessprogramme.

For a few people it will be clear from the application form that Access is not their best way forward. All other applicants will be invited to come for an interview with a member of the Access team. In the interview we will aim to establish that Access is the best course for you, and to help you make the best choice of subjects. We will also want to discuss the demands placed by our part-time Access Programme and the need for good personal and time-management skills gained from wider life-experience.

Access classes begin Monday 22 September 2014

Course fees for the Access Programme are £425 for session 2014-15. The Access Programme is registered under the ILA200; other help with fees, including local bursaries, may also be available if receiving long-term benefits.

For further information and an application form, contact:

General Information

Fees and funding

Individual Learning Accounts (ILAs)

If you are on a low income you may qualify for the Skills Development Scotland's Individual Learning Accounts scheme. The £200 ILA can be used towards most of our courses. Unfortunately courses which carry no credit are not eligible. For more details and to open an account, please call the ILA Scotland's helpline free on 0808 100 1090 or go to their website: www.myworldofwork.co.uk/content/ila-scotland-funding-for-you

Please note that you must have set up your ILA account and have your learner funds available before you can enrol on a course and before the course start date. If you are using an existing account your new learner year funds must be available before the new course start date and at the time of enrolment in order to redeem them against a course.

Part-time Fee Grant (PTFG)

If you plan to study CertHE courses totalling 30 credits or more in year 2014-15, you may be eligible to apply for the Part-time Fee Grant (PTFG) which can contribute towards course fees. Students in receipt of certain state benefits or those who are earning £25,000 or less per year including any private and state pensions may be eligible. For further information visit www.gla.ac.uk/services/centreforopenstudies/feesfundingandrefunds/#Part-time_Fee_Grant and to download an application pack with and to download an application pack with completion guidelines please visit the Student Awards Agency for Scotland (SAAS) website www.saas.gov.uk/part_time/ug/index.htm or telephone 0300 300 3137.

- Please note you may have a balance to pay once the PTFG has been applied; some possible examples:

10 credit Italian stage (£210)
 + 10 credit Understanding Archaeology (£115)
 + 10 credit Literature of the Ancient Near East (£115)
 = 30 credits
 *total cost £440, PTFG covers £321, balance to pay £119

20 credit Art of the Italian Renaissance (£230)
 + 10 credit Understanding Archaeology (£115)
 = 30 credits
 *total cost £345, PTFG covers £321, balance to pay £24

40 credit Fundamentals of Psychology (£460)
 * total cost £460, PTFG covers £428, balance to pay £32

- It is important that you apply for funding for all your courses at the same time at the start of the 2014-15 session, as if you add further courses during the year you will not likely receive any SAAS funding and you will need to fund them yourself.
- If you withdraw from some of your courses and the total amount of credit you are taking is less than 30 credits you will no longer be eligible for a Part-time Fee Grant and will need to fund the courses you have taken yourself.

* confirmed at point of enrolment.

Concession fees

The Centre for Open Studies offers a 50% reduction on some of the unaccredited courses (excluding day events) to students who are registered unemployed and others whose main source of income is one of the main state benefits such as income support, disability person's tax credit or severe disablement allowance. In addition, the concession is offered to those students who are in receipt of pension credits.

Payment Plans

If you have difficulty in meeting the full course fee prior to enrolment, it may be possible to arrange a payment plan. However, this applies only to courses with fees of £400 or more.

Please apply in writing to:
 Ms Helen McWhirr, Administrator,
 Centre for Open Studies,
 University of Glasgow,
 St Andrew's Building,
 Glasgow G3 6NH

or email: helen.mcwhirr@glasgow.ac.uk
 Please note that such arrangements cannot be made over the telephone. Your application will be treated in confidence.

Learning Works

Some of the courses in this brochure may be available to University of Glasgow staff taking advantage of the Learning Works scheme. For further information: www.glasgow.ac.uk/services/staffdevelopment/learningworks/ or tel: +44 (0)141 330 4270 or email: learningworks@glasgow.ac.uk

Student declaration

In signing the form, we are asking you to observe the regulations and requirements of the University as set out in the Calendar, which is available on the web at: www.glasgow.ac.uk/services/senateoffice/calendar

Further information on a number of issues relevant to your enrolment can be found on the Centre for Open Studies website www.glasgow.ac.uk/centreforopenstudies or by calling +44 (0)141 330 1835.

University of Glasgow ID card

Students taking Certificate of Higher Education courses and ACE credit courses on the Open Programme are offered a University of Glasgow ID card. You are required to request your ID card from the Centre for Open Studies Information Office. You can do this by visiting in person at the St Andrew's Building, 11 Eldon Street or by telephoning 0141 330 1835. The card will allow entry to the University Library, the Language Centre and Sports Facilities (fee applies) and allows access to University computing facilities.

Equal opportunities

The Centre for Open Studies is committed to equality of opportunity for all. We welcome a diverse student population and aim to ensure that all students have the opportunity to benefit fully from participation in Open Studies courses. To this end, the Centre for Open Studies seeks to achieve and maintain a student body that broadly reflects the communities within which it operates. The University's Equality and Diversity Policy can be found at: www.glasgow.ac.uk/services/equalitydiversity/equalitydiversitypolicy

Withdrawals and refunds

If a course is fully subscribed or is cancelled due to insufficient demand, you will receive a full refund. If you decide to withdraw from a course then you must tell us in writing:

Centre for Open Studies
University of Glasgow
Enrolment Office
St Andrew's Building
Eldon Street
Glasgow, G3 6NH

Or email: openstudies-enquiry@glasgow.ac.uk or fax +44 (0)141 330 1821. You must do this as soon as possible but certainly not later than five working days before the course begins. If these conditions are met, a refund of the course fee will be made. If you require to withdraw from a course on medical grounds, a medical certificate or letter from your doctor must be provided. Upon receipt of this, a refund will be issued.

Transfers

Students may transfer their enrolment to another course by applying in writing (letter or email) to the Enrolment Secretary quoting their University of Glasgow student number, present course title and course code, and the course title and course code to which they wish to transfer. Students may only transfer to a course which is currently running, and not onto a course offered in a future term/semester, and transfers must be made within three weeks of the beginning of the course. The transfer will be made if a free place is available. If the fees of the two courses are different then the appropriate refund or extra charge will be made. Please note that the Centre for Open Studies must be notified in writing of transfers, not by telephone and not via the tutor.

Cancellation of courses

Classes with low enrolments will be subject to cancellation either before or at the first meeting. Where possible, at least a week's notice will be given. When a course is cancelled, a full refund of fees paid will be made. Please note that if fees have been paid for by cash or cheque then a refund will be made by cheque. Fees paid by credit card will be refunded to the card number provided. Please enrol early on your chosen class in order to reduce the chance of disappointment.

Postponement of classes

In the event of inclement weather or other unforeseen circumstances, when classes might have to be postponed at short notice, the Centre for Open Studies will make every effort to relay the information via Real Radio, Radio Clyde and BBC Radio Scotland. If you are uncertain whether a class will be held please contact the Information Centre on +44 (0)141 330 1835.

University facilities

The University Library

If you are taking an ACE or Certificate of Higher Education course you can use the University Library as soon as you are registered. Your registration card is also your Library card – you will need it to get in to the building. You can find information about borrowing and other library activities on the webpages, or ask at the Welcome Desk. Find out more about the Library: www.lib.gla.ac.uk or email: library@lib.gla.ac.uk

St Andrew's Building Café

The St Andrew's Building café is normally open daily from 08.30 to 15.00 during term time commencing 8 September 2014. Both inside the café and on the 5th floor of the St. Andrew's Building, there are vending machines and seating areas available day and evening. There are also many local cafes close to the St. Andrew's Building for students attending evening classes.

Sport and recreation at the University of Glasgow

There are two categories of membership available for Open Studies students, for more information visit: www.glasgow.ac.uk/sport or follow glasgowunisport on facebook and Twitter.

The Language Centre Library

The Language Centre Library is located in spacious premises on the ground floor of the Hetherington Building in Bute Gardens. www.gla.ac.uk/about/languagecentre/languagecentrelibrary/. Open Studies students wishing further information about the library should make contact in person or by email: lc-librarian@arts.gla.ac.uk.

Information for students with disabilities

We welcome enquiries and applications from all students including students with dyslexia, chronic medical or mental health conditions, sensory impairments and mobility impairments. We encourage you to disclose as early as possible any disability or condition to ensure that appropriate support is arranged. This could include physical access, assistance with evacuation, examination and study arrangements. Early disclosure is important. If you do not disclose at an early stage it may not be possible for us to make suitable provision. You may already have indicated a disability on the enrolment form but this information is used for statistical purposes only.

Irene Vezza is the Centre for Open Studies Disability Coordinator and should be contacted in the first instance (tel: +44 (0)141 330 1823 or email: irene.vezza@glasgow.ac.uk). You can also contact the University's Disability Service (DS) which is an advisory and support service available to all potential and enrolled students who have a disability: telephone +44 (0)141 330 5497, fax +44 (0)141 330 4562 or email: disability@gla.ac.uk

The DS web pages outline the range of services available to disabled students (www.glasgow.ac.uk/disability). All information disclosed will be treated as 'sensitive personal data' as defined by the Data Protection Act (1998), and will not be passed on without your explicit consent.

For students who are deaf or have a hearing impairment: there are a number of rooms equipped with induction loop systems. Other communication services, eg sign language interpreters, lipspeaking, note-taking support etc may be available. Please contact Irene as early as possible to book any of these services or to make sure that the room in which your class is due to be held is suitable.

Students with mobility impairments: most University campus buildings are accessible by wheelchair and every effort is made to ensure students can also access off-campus course venues.

Students who are blind or have a visual impairment: please contact Irene if you require course material to be produced in Braille, enlarged or in an alternative format.
