Graduate attributes relate to student experience of university as a whole and reflect your development over the course of your university career. Articulating these attributes will help you reflect on the skills you have to offer, and this will be helpful when it comes to completing online job applications and preparing for interviews. Your work as a Peer Wellbeing Supporter equips you with skills that will be highly sought after by potential employers.

Take some time to reflect on these attributes and how you might incorporate them into your CV or job applications in the future.

www.gla.ac.uk/myglasgow/counselling/peersupport