A Law Workshop Guide: Online Literature Searching

Finding Specific Items

If you know the name of the textbook, author or both, search using the library catalogue: https://www.gla.ac.uk/myglasgow/library/

Here is an example search for Contract Law in Scotland by Hector L. MacQueen.

You can refine this search using the filters on the right if necessary. You can filter by library location, content type, discipline, publication date, subject terms and keywords.

To find only ebooks, check the 'Full Text Online' filter to the left of the screen.

In this instance, Contract Law in Scotland is the first result, so there is no need for further searching. You will see how many copies are available and where they are located, and if an e-book version is available.

The Law Workshop does not currently have an automated issuing system. As such, the loan status of Law Workshop resources is not updated online and all resources will be marked 'Not Known'.

To see if the book is available, you can visit the workshop (when current restrictions are lifted) or you can email the Law Workshop at fiona.gordon@glasgow.ac.uk

A Note on Classification

The classification for books in the Workshop are the same as for the main library – in this example shown above, Law GC20 MACQU4. If you are unsure, click through to the link for the book and check for further details.

General Search

For general searches, you can type keywords into the library search bar and filter your results using the filters on the right.

You can also use the Advanced Search function.

Here is an example of an advanced search, containing both the terms 'contract law' AND 'Scotland'. The search has also been filtered to 'Book/ebook' by content type, and 'Law' by discipline.

You can also use 'OR' or 'NOT' to narrow or widen your search.

| | Items in the library catalogue | Dissertations/Theses | |

Searching with the advanced search function gives 221 results, which is far more focused than the earlier search using just the basic library search bar.

Again, if necessary, this can be filtered further.

Advanced Search Tips – Boolean Operators

Boolean search terms will help you to focus and refine your results by defining the connections between search terms. Examples are as follows:

| Operator | Variants | Search Terms | Effect |
|---------------|------------------------------|-----------------------------|---|
| AND | &, + | Law AND Government | Restricts results to documents containing both terms |
| OR | | Scots Law OR Common Law | Expands Results to documents containing either term |
| NOT | %, BUT NOT, AND NOT | Family Law NOT Scotland | Restricts results to documents containing the first term not the second |
| Exact Phrase | "" | "Family Law in Scotland" | Restricts results to the exact phrase in quotation |
| Wildcard | * | Organi*ation | Retrieves results with variances in spelling or related words (ie. Organisation/organization) |
| Root Expander | , ! | Scot | Retrieves documents containing terms with a common 'root', ie. Scotland, Scottish, etc. |

Additional Resources

The library is temporarily making a number of resources available online as a result of the Covid-19 pandemic. These can be accessed here:

https://www.gla.ac.uk/myglasgow/library/specificsearch/temporaryaccess/

This list will be continually updated.

You should be aware of books available through these additional resources from class reading lists and updates on Moodle.

You will find that books on the same subject tend to start with the same letter. Books are classified using Glasgow University's cataloguing system. Search the shelves alphabetically, starting with the first letter.

Contract Law in Scotland is shelved at LAW GC20 MACQU4.

After locating the law section, Find 'G' on the shelves, then within that section 'GC', etc. The letters at the end of the classification refer to the author's surname.

If you are browsing the shelves, subject areas tend to be grouped together, for example:

A: Legal Style Guides

H: Intellectual Property

E: Roman Law

L: European Law
