

Linda Hanna

Co-opted Member

Linda is an experienced senior leader working across public and private sector to deliver solutions addressing economic challenges and opportunities. She currently works as Managing Director of Scottish Economic Development at Scottish Enterprise to help build economic systems to support entrepreneurs, industries and communities in Scotland to innovate and grow.

This includes helping accelerate major opportunities for Scotland's economy, such as high-value manufacturing, life sciences, data-driven innovation and the low-carbon economy through partnerships across Scotland's cities and regions.

Linda is Co-Chair of the Boeing Scotland Alliance and previously been an advisor on the UK R&D Place Advisory Group, a Founding Director of Fintech Scotland and Michelin Scotland Innovation Parc and Non-Executive Director of Investors in People Scotland and Scottish Business in the Community.

Linda works closely with Scottish Government and is a member of Scotland's Financial Services Advisory Board, Manufacturing Leadership Group, Scotland's Technology Ecosystem Steering Group and Scotland's Health Innovation Partnership.