

THE PLACE-NAMES OF FIFE SERIES

THE PLACE-NAMES OF FIFE

Volumes One to Four

by Simon Taylor, with Gilbert Márkus

Four volumes of this monumental series have now appeared (2006 to 2010), covering the whole of Fife, area by area, and setting new standards in county place-name research. The volumes are organised alphabetically by parish, each parish with its own extensive introduction which includes details of church and chapel dedications, parish boundaries past and present, and other aspects of local history with a bearing on the place-nomenclature. Each parish is also provided with two maps, one the eighteenth-century Ainslie map, and one custom-made. Each volume also includes the names of linear features which cross parish boundaries. The volumes attempt to analyse every place-name shown on the Ordnance Survey 1:25 000 maps, as well as many names which are no longer in use, with early forms, sources, context and discussion. There will also be a fifth volume.

Fife is not only a discrete geographical area, it is one which has been subject to many different linguistic influences: Pictish, Gaelic, Scots, Scottish Standard English, and some Scandinavian and French. The presence of early and important ecclesiastical centres, especially monasteries, has also ensured a high degree of documentation.

Each volume is a cloth-bound large-format hardback (240 × 162 mm) and several hundred pages long. The retail price of each volume is £24, exceptionally good value. They can be ordered direct from the publisher, Shaun Tyas (and that's post-free within the UK), through bookshops and on-line from many outlets. For overseas postage, please contact the publisher:
