The Careers & Internship Marketplace is designed to help you think about and connect with your future.

Regardless of your year of study or whether you have already graduated, the fair is an exciting opportunity to meet employers who are keen to talk to and recruit students/graduates like you. Plan for success, by:

• Identifying which employers interest you most
• Thinking about the questions you’d like to ask them
• Reflecting on what you have to offer a potential employer
• Considering what you want each employer to know about you.

Preparation such as this will really pay off and ensure that you get the most out of your time at the fair and create the right first impression.

AGCAS is represented at today’s fair too. We’re the expert membership organisation for higher education student career development and graduate employment professionals. Through our members, we support the best possible career outcomes from higher education for individuals, institutions, society and the economy.

As well as organising events like this one, AGCAS also researches and writes a wealth of careers information material to help you plan your future. You will be able to see examples on the AGCAS stand today. You may already have seen this via Prospects (www.prospects.ac.uk), TARGETjobs (www.targetjobs.co.uk), TARGETpostgrad (www.targetpostgrad.com) and on our own website (www.agcas.org.uk). If not, these sites and those provided by your own institution, are an amazing resource to support you so take a look after the fair.

I hope you enjoy the fair and that it helps you on your personal journey towards a satisfying and rewarding career.

Good luck for the future!
